DIRECTORS:
John Lucas, Esq., M.L.A., Chairman.
Thomas Holt, Esq., M.L.A. | James Henderson, Esq.
G. W. Lord, Esq., M.L.A. | R. P. Richardson, Esq.

This company is formed for the purpose of constructing a railway from Sydney to Botany.

The directors propose to make use of the Great Southern Railway for one mile and three-quarters, and to branch off therefrom at Erskineville Bridge, and proceed in nearly a straight line to the terminus at Botany Bay, within 200 yards of the city waterworks. By adopting this course, the Company will thus save the expense of constructing one mile and three-quarters of way, besides a very considerable sum for compensation for valuable lands near the city, leaving only three miles of way, to be constructed by the Company.

In consequence of the natural features of the country being so exceedingly favourable, the cost of the proposed line the directors have reason to believe (from an accurate estimate made), will not exceed, for the entire distance, £8000.

The Government have promised to afford every facility to the company in carrying out the proposed undertaking.

The advantages to be derived from the completion of this railway are so obvious in every point of view, that the directors think it needless to notice them in detail. They would merely call attention to its importance in a commercial point of view, and to the attractiveness of that delightful locality to citizens and excursionists, as the railway will open up, within a quarter of an hour's journey, the whole of one of the most beautiful suburbs of the city which, hitherto, has been almost unapproachable.

A considerable number of the shares have already been applied for, but the directors, considering it advisable to make the proprietory as large as possible, have therefore resolved that the share list shall be kept open until TUESDAY, the 22nd July next.

Applications for shares to be made in the annexed form, and forwarded to the secretary, 95, Elizabeth-street, Sydney.

J. R. RADFORD, secretary.

THE GREAT EASTERN HOTEL, LAMBING FLAT.—Proprietor, Mr. JOHN BRIGG.

THE GREAT EASTERN HOTEL being the largest establishment, as well as the best and most commodious house on the Southern Gold-fields, the proprietor feels great pleasure in informing commercial gentlemen and families visiting the Burrangong Gold-fields, that his house has undergone a thorough re-arrangement and repair, and especial care has been bestowed upon the bedrooms, thirty in number, which are neat, clean, and comfortable.

Private sitting rooms, with separate tables, for families.

The bar is the largest and most tastefully fitted up on Burrangong, and always stocked with the choicest assortment of ales, wines, spirits, &c.

Table d'hote at one and half-past one every day. The cuisine department is under the immediate management of the proprietor, Mr. John Brigg, whose well known ability as a chef-de-cuisine is sufficient to guarantee a first-class spread.

☞ The billiard room is being fitted up on a scale of magnificence unsurpassed in this district.

The stables are capable of affording accommodation for thirty horses, and a first-rate groom is always in attendance to dispense the very best oaten hay, oats, or corn to the horses. Lock-up coach-house. A good well of water on the ground. A secure paddock for horses, with water, at the rear of the premises.

TO GRAZIERS, AUCTIONEERS, and others having STOCK for SALE.—To meet a want very generally felt in the realization of Fat and other Stock, the undersigned has, at considerable expense, recently built yards at Petersham, Parramatta Road, adjoining the lands of James Norton, Esq., within a few minutes walk of the railway station, for the SALE of CATTLE, SHEEP, and HORSES. These yards are constructed on the same principle as the cattle market in Melbourne, and being situated at a convenient distance from the public slaughter-houses, and close to the road leading thereto, in connection with which they are mainly intended to be used, the owners of cattle and sheep will be assured of obtaining the market prices, and the retail butchers will have the opportunity of buying live stock in small lots, to the extent of their requirements, instead of depending on large purchasers, as heretofore. Such is the course pursued in Melbourne, where it has been found advantageous and convenient alike to the owners of stock and the retail butchers, both of whom will be equally benefited by the adoption of the same practice here; and the slaughter-houses, which have been erected at an enormous cost for the use of the public, will be brought into general requisition, instead of being, as at present, only partially used.

The Yards are named the "Victoria Cattle Market," and will be opened on the 14th instant. The scale of charges will be posted up at the Yards for the information and convenience of customers. Application for the use of the yards for the sale of cattle or other stock, to be made to Mr. DENNIS LANNE, on the premises; or to the undersigned,

EDWARD FLOOD.

Botany-street, Surry Hills, Sydney, April 3.

AUCTION SALES of Household Furniture, Effects, Works of Art, Plate, Oil Paintings, Pictures, &c., conducted by JOHN G. COHEN.

 Inventories taken at the shortest notice.

Families leaving the colony and others, disposing of their household furniture, effects, &c., are respectfully informed that JOHN G. COHEN continues to undertake sales by auction of such property in all cases where the same is not intended for removal from the premises, and which has formed a portion of his general and extensive business of an auctioneer for more than twenty-one years in this colony.

Liberal advances made in anticipation of proceeds being realised, in all cases when so required, without incurring extra expense to his constituents, who have likewise the advantage of remaining in their houses up to the time of sale—a facility frequently of great moment to families.

Principals have only to give general instructions in such cases where they do not wish to be on the spot, or are unavoidably absent. Sales effected by private contract when so directed; in either case, every care will be devoted that energy and practical experience can accomplish, to obtain the highest prices for the benefit of his clients.

Referring back to his long and varied experience, combined with a general knowledge of this particular branch of business, JOHN G. COHEN begs to assure those who may honour him with their confidence, that he will continue to devote the same unremitting zeal for the benefit of his constituents that has hitherto marked his career, and which, in connection with his moderate charges, have produced such favourable results, and given general satisfaction to his numerous patrons.

G. L. feels that from the liberal patronage hitherto shown him, to comment upon the quality of the wines, &c., as well as the comfort of his visitors would be superfluous. He would, however, call special attention to the superior stabling accommodation.

We have, therefore, given orders that all parties imitating or using our label after this notice will be prosecuted as the law directs.

JOHN BAPTIST, in returning thanks to the public generally of New South Wales and the neighbouring colonies for past favours, offers for sale, this season, the most extensive and varied stock of Fruit Trees, Flowering and Ornamental trees and Shrubs to be found in the Australian colonies.

The soil of his establishment being naturally poor and exposed to the most trying winds, the advantage to purchasers getting trees from such a situation is evident. John Baptist offers this explanation, as many parties are under the impression that all fruit trees, plants, &c., offered for sale by him are grown on rich soil.

John Baptist respectfully solicits intending purchasers to call at the nursery and view his collection previous to purchasing, as he firmly believes they will be pleased with the growth and healthy state of all plants which will be offered to them.

Prices, moderate; and any person requiring a large number of plants will be dealt with on liberal terms.

All orders from the country and neighbouring colonies punctually attended to; trees and plants correctly labelled and carefully packed.

READY MONEY.

In all extensive pursuits the advantages derived from a command of capital for the purposes of cash purchases, at once places the buyer in a position to successfully compete with, and ultimately to overcome all opposition; and for this season, the buyer for cash, to a very great extent, commands his own terms, takes only what his judgment tells him is correct, and at prices that will give him an advantage in selling. On the other hand, those necessitated to obtain their supplies on credit are compelled to yield to the force of circumstances, and no matter what aptitude for business they may possess, or the amount of judgment enjoyed, the fact still exists that they are powerless without the means to command, and consequently must pay for the accommodation given. The shopkeeper without capital is necessitated to put by the takings to meet his monthly engagements. Their having the advantage of surplus cash are at all times prepared to take advantage of the fluctuations of the home and colonial markets, and are often enabled to retail as cheap, or cheaper than the non-capitalist is, in the first instance, obliged to pay for his goods in the wholesale houses.

The above remarks more especially hold good in the transactions of Messrs. COHEN, BROTHERS, and CO., their large capital being at all times available where ready money is an object. This is one of the means that has, and does enable them to maintain the high character for CHEAPNESS combined with SUPERIORITY, that their establishment has attained among all classes of purchasers, for it has ever been their policy to extend to their patrons the advantages their capital and experience have given them. That they fearlessly defy competition is evident from the fact, that any article purchased at their establishment, and not giving satisfaction to the buyer, is EXCHANGED, or, if preferred, the MONEY RETURNED, without the slightest hesitation. Whatever opinions may be held as to the genuine character of newspaper advertisements, a simple truth, like the above, must carry its own conviction.

COHEN, BROTHERS, and CO. would draw particular attention to the following scale of charges for their clothing, with the assurance to purchasers, that each article is obtainable at the figure quoted. In the

In addition to her broadside guns, she is supplied with a 100-pounder Armstrong gun working on a pivot, which at present is placed forward. Her engines are of 400-horse power, of the most approved construction. Subjoined is a list of her officers:—Commodore Burnett, Commander Burton. Lieutenants Trendge, Hill, Yonge, Jekyll. Dr. Troason, surgeon. Mr. Sling, master. Mr. Amphlete, paymaster. Mr. Hill, lieutenant marine artillery. Mr. Stephens, chief engineer. Mr. Coates, assistant surgeon. Mr. Gillham, secretary. Messrs. Johnson, Bradshaw, Jerningham, Huddlestroom, Hunt, Fielding, Mullock, Tozer, Taylor, Aylen, Fairfax, Broughton, Verner, Barkley, mates and midshipmen. The Hotspur left Plymouth on the 11th April, crossed the equator on the 3rd May in 27· W., and passed the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope on the 3rd June. She ran down her easting under most unfavourable circumstances, the wind prevailing from eastward nearly all the time; passed south of Van Diemen's Land on the 14th instant. She brings 42 married couple, 183 single men, 151 single women, and 52 children. There have been three deaths—two infants and an adult, and three births on the passage. The passengers are in excellent health, and the ship remarkably clean and comfortable.

The Urara (s.), from Clarence River, crossed the bar at 3 p.m. on the 16th instant, and brisk easterly breezes and moderate weather the early part of the passage, and strong S.S.W. winds, with a heavy head sea to Sydney. The Vixen arrived on the 16th. The Urara (s.), brings up 1687 bags maize, 70 bags flour, 100 boxes soap, 30 boxes candles, 10 casks tallow, 11 casks tongues, 12 drums oil, 241 hides, 12 packages bacon, 19 pigs, 7 boxes eggs, 6 coops poultry, 260 ounces gold.

The Balclutha (s.), left Maryborough at 6.30 p.m., 15th July; anchored in the river until 10.30 a.m., 16th; crossed Wide Bay Bar at 3.30 p.m., 16th; passed a brig steering to the south, off Double Island Point, at 4.30 p.m., same day; passed Cape Moreton at 11.10 p.m., Point Lookout at 1 a.m., off which passed Boomerang at 10.30; 17th, off the Richmond River, passed the barque Mary Nicholson, with passengers bound north, desired to be reported; light winds and fine weather to Smoky Cape, from thence to Newcastle hard southerly winds; in Seal Rock Bay there was a schooner and ketch at anchor wind bound. 18th, moderate southerly and westerly winds to Heads; entered at 1.30 a.m.

Moore and Finlay's Self-reefing Topsail.—On Monday afternoon a public trial of this invention took place on board the ship Pelican, lying at the east side of the Prince's Dock. A number of nautical and other gentlemen connected with shipping were present. As in all the new plans of reefing, the object in this instance is to supersede the necessity of going aloft for the purpose of reefing the sails, thus effecting a saving of time and labour without the risks attending the old method of reefing. The advantages claimed for this invention are, that it is much more simple in its operation than any yet brought before the public. One of its leading features is that of having the halyard single, and in a direct line with the mast, thus preventing any strain or tendency to draw the mast from its proper position. Two sails fitted to the Pelican were reefed several times in a few minutes, and with the greatest ease; in fact, with the exercise of ordinary care, the sails reef themselves. All present, including the owner of the Pelican and the commander, Captain Wood, expressed themselves perfectly satisfied with the result of the trial, and that in practical application of the plan at sea it would work equally well. We understand that another vessel, the Byron, has been fitted with the new patent topsail.—Mitchell's Steam Journal, May 9.

The Great Eastern.—This steamship, which sailed on the 7th instant from Milford Haven for for New York, has been spoken since her departure by two ships. At the time she was last seen, at 7.30 a.m. on the 11th, the Great Eastern was in latitude 49 45 N., and longitude 32·20 W. Considering her position when spoken, she must have logged about 283 miles per diem.—Mitchell's Steam Journal, May 23.

SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1862.

The Legislative Assembly met yesterday at twenty-nine minutes past three p.m.

Mr. Windom presented a petition from inhabitants of Morpeth, against the Matrimonial Causes Bill.

A question by Mr. Dalgleish, having reference to papers relative to the road from Glebe Island to the Parramatta Road, was ruled inadmissible by the Speaker, because asking reasons for the non-production of the papers.

Mr. Walker, by way of explanation, stated that, in certain observations of his on a late occasion, having reference to the case of a gentleman who had abandoned the Church for a more lucrative avocation, he had not intended to convey the idea that this gentleman had absolutely given up his clerical character, but simply that he had betaken himself to other pursuits.

In answer to questions, Ministers stated—that an incorrect survey having been originally made, by an incompetent person, casually employed by the Government, preparatory to the erection of a bridge over the Hunter, at West Maitland, it had been found necessary to make another survey, which having been done, the plans were now in preparation;—that certain papers, relating to the formation of the road from Glebe Island to the Parramatta Road would be produced as soon as they could be collected from the various departments;—and that the Government had come to no determination as to the establishment of a system of competitive examination for the public service, inasmuch as it was very doubtful whether the system in question had operated satisfactorily in England.

Mr. Cowper presented petitions, respectively, from inhabitants of Mudgee in favour of the bill to prohibit future grants in aid of public worship—and from clergymen and members of the Church of England, against the Matrimonial Causes Bill.

Some conversation arose upon a question by Mr. Hannell, as to why persons were prevented from taking tracings of the plans for the proposed bridge over the Hunter at Singleton, the Speaker objecting to the question as out of order, and Mr. Arnold referring to an answer he had given previously on the same subject.

Mr. Rotton inquired whether he could go on with a motion on the paper in his name, having given notice of the same motion for a future day.

The Speaker ruled in the negative.

A petition, introduced by Mr. Faucett, from Gunning and its vicinity, in favour of stipends to the clergy, was ruled inadmissible by the Speaker, because it prayed directly for a grant of money, and because it exhibited erasures.

In answer to questions, Ministers stated that difficulties had arisen in carrying out the determination of the Government to align the streets of Maitland, owing to the narrowness of the streets, and to the town having been originally private property—that complete drainage of the Bathurst gaol could not be effected until the drainage of the town itself should be carried out—that plans for additions to the Bathurst Court-house were in course of preparation—that working drawings for the construction of the Nepean Bridge would probably be completed in three weeks, and the bridge itself in about two years—that tenders for the Great Western Railway Extension beyond Penrith would probably be called for in three months, and that the Government could see no grounds for interfering in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Bentley.

Petitions were presented, respectively—by Mr. R. Forster, from the inhabitants of Balmain—and by Mr. Hart, from others of Liverpool—and again from others of East Maitland, against the Matrimonial Causes Bill.

The House went into committee on the bill last above mentioned.

An amendment, previously moved by Mr. Dalgleish, on clause 6, purporting to include among the grounds of judicial separation, "habitual gambling," was, after a brief discussion, negatived by 22 to 14.

Mr. Harpur moved an amendment, having similar reference to "incompatibility of temper."

Mr. Egan moved that the Chairman leave the chair. This motion was negatived by 25 to 13.

Mr. Harpur's amendment was negatived by 27 to 11.

Mr. Egan moved that "impotency" be included among the grounds above-mentioned.

After considerable discussion, the amendment was withdrawn.

After further discussion, Mr. Hart moved an amendment to the effect that questions of fact should be tried by a jury, which was negatived by 20 to 13.

Mr. Egan moved that progress be reported, which was negatived by 23 to 7. The amended clause was carried by 16 to 14.

From clause 7 Mr. Hart moved the omission of words giving parties power to apply for restitution of conjugal rights, which was negatived by 19 to 14.

On the motion of Mr. Holroyd, the Chairman was ordered to report progress, and to ask leave to sit again in a week, an amendment by Mr. Egan, for a month's postponement, being negatived by 21 to 4.

On the House resuming, the further consideration of the question was fixed for that day week, and an amendment by Mr. Hart, for a month's postponement negatived, by 20 to 6.

On the motion of Mr. Cowper, the adjournment of the House, to the usual hour on Tuesday next, was carried by 18 to 11, at twenty minutes past ten p.m.

We have no fear for a cause which appeals to the sympathies of the entire population. It is true our differences are many, and jealousies of classes and churches often obstruct co-operation, when in reality all are interested, if not in equal proportions. The distress, however, of the workpeople belonging to the closed mills appeals to every heart; it is hunger, nakedness—the mother and the child—that call for our aid. By the time we can render it "the people who need it now will need it more"—others, we fear will be beyond our reach, and when winter—so fraught with pleasantness to the prosperous—comes on the destitute with its biting cold, how much severer will be suffering, how much fewer the hands to help, and how much more numerous the destitute!

Blessed country where the healthy man always finds employment, and the sick succour! We have want and trouble here and there, but we have now only such as comes from our individual vices and personal misfortune. Or if by flood or fire, a larger number are involved in some local calamity, an instant effort of benevolence softens the fall from opulence or competence, and gives at least time for recovery. But this great affliction which comes from the civil war of America has descended on whole districts and involved hundreds of thousands. Our quotation from the Times will, we hope, satisfy the reader that the case we have stated is real and indisputable. Mr. Bright is not an authority with us; beside that his sayings amount to no more than this that the suffering of the present times are not greater than we witnessed before the epoch of free trade. The details we have already published show that, early in May, in Lancashire alone, 57,861 were totally unemployed, and 100,000 employed two days in the week. Let any one imagine what would be the effect of a similar state of things in his own neighbourhood after six weeks; then what it would be at the end of twelve months' declining trade, and often suspended employment; what after the Savings' Banks were exhausted—the ornaments, furniture, and even clothing sold,—and the mechanic still permitted to inhabit his once comfortable cottage perhaps, but now bare of all its former comforts, and equally bare of the common necessaries of life. Let our readers sit down and think what such a state of things implies—what physical and mental suffering; let our rich men look at their tables to-day, and think that the wan face attenuated by famine, would be lighted up with a smile at the sight of the crumbs that fall from their table; let them remember that while they are clothed and fed, with abundance, Lazarus is at their gate so long as there is misery they can reach but do not succour. Let the mechanic and labourer, of whom is required much sympathy and a small donation, look at his wife and children, well supplied, if industrious and careful, with all things necessary to happiness, if not indulgence—think of the multitudes "at home" who are destitute of bread; let them imagine the darkness of soul, the shock of faith, the trial of patience, even of honesty, which must come over their brothers, while they see their children grow weak and thin with want, and tears course down the cheek of a tender but helpless mother, who does not murmur but dies for them. These, we own, are sombre thoughts, but they will hurt no man to think them, unless he harden his heart against them, and listen to some of those common places of avarice never wanting to those who seek them.

It may be said that England ought to help them—true; but are not we England, taking the word in its full sense? We do not see all this sorrow; but it is the noble attribute of human beings to feel as keenly what they do not see. Our native country, our recollections of home still live in our hearts, whether in merry England, the Emerald Isle, or the Land of "the mountain and the flood," once hostile, now under the sway of a Sovereign who has her sorrows, and has deserved her people's love, because in her sorrow she has remembered them. We shall not be able to communicate to the native born the thrill of emotion which is awakened when England suffers. We cannot make them understand how much is implied by the Shamrock, the Rose, and the Thistle, but we can at least teach them the lesson of patriotism, second in worth only to the lessons of humanity, by showing how deeply it is engraven on our souls.

Many valuable suggestions have been offered—they will all have their place. It is said truly that the most effectual relief to a distressed family in the United Kingdom is to bridge the ocean for them. We have been assured by a venerable gentleman connected with the Donegal movement that the immigrants brought out by the fund for their relief have returned large sums to their families, and induced the emigration of many more. But there will be ample opportunities, and we fear occasions enough, to test every method of succour. Our views of emigration as a question of public policy, are well known to the readers of the Herald, but the first duty we owe is to relieve distress where it exists, to know nothing but that distress; to give bread and shelter to the hungry and desolate, and then if the Legislature will vote money in proportion to the sum subscribed, say three-fourths, we might expect our men of wealth to come to the rescue. We do not see why the manufacturers of England themselves should not have a large cotton growing establishment in this colony, and why we should not offer them 100,000 acres of land on the Clarence River, on condition that they grow, by workmen imported from their own districts, to be finally owners of the soil, a hundred thousand bales of cotton. As we have abandoned the sale of land, we might do well to put some of it to the account of this new form of industry. But these are all remote considerations, and cannot be admitted in a case where general suffering demands direct and personal assistance.

The case before us is this—a calamitous war has involved our districts in misery; this misery has been borne with noble resignation. No seditious cry; scarcely a reproach has hitherto arisen from the sufferers. Thanks to the Press, they know whence this sorrow comes; thanks to the steamship and wire, swift-winged consolation and succour will be available wherever the English tongue is spoken. A great controversy involving the question of free or bond labour, for all time to come, has smitten our greatest manufacture with paralysis. We believe it will liberate the American slave from his chains, and that it will one day give England from every quarter of the globe a supply of raw material and markets to consume it. We deplore the consequences of the war, both as they fall on our American kinsmen, and our own nearer and dearer countrymen: but it is in the hands of the Ruler of the World. What may be His full purpose, who can tell? But our duty we know, and that duty we shall see our fellow-colonists inaugurate to-day.

In committing himself as a politician to the advocacy of protection, Mr. W. B. Allen, fairly faces the fact that the whole Press of the colony is against him. With great confidence in his cause, however, he thinks lightly of this disadvantage. The Press, it would seem, does not speak under the inspiration of independent observation, and unbiassed judgment. It is in bondage to traditions, those traditions being the deliberate opinions formed and expressed by nearly all the great statesmen and economists of Europe, after elaborate study and a comprehensive experience. He is confident, however, that he will succeed in proving that the abstract truths of political economy do not hold good when applied to Australia, and if the Press will only give currency to his facts and arguments he will be able to make use of the newspapers to confute their own doctrines. We have endeavoured to give the hon. gentleman a reasonable amount of accommodation in that respect, and without the slightest apprehension of its doing any serious mischief. Discussion is always necessary thoroughly to clear up the intricacies of any subject, and the more the protectionists try to prove that prosperity is to be obtained by making commodities dearer than they need be, the more completely they will satisfy the whole body of consumers that free markets for buying and free markets for selling, will give the maximum of profit, and the maximum of enjoyment.

Mr. Allen's process of reasoning is very simple. He first gathers together all the evils that afflict our commercial and social condition, and then, conveniently dispensing with proof, asserts them to be the consequence of free trade. This is one side of the picture. He then offers us a glowing description of a state of contented prosperity, in which everybody finds plenty of work in the exact occupation he is fitted for, and assures us that will be the result of protection. If any one likes to take these assertions on the hon. member's authority, he may be ranked as a convert; but if he asks for anything like proof he will be considered unreasonable for requiring demonstration of that which is as clear as noon-day.

It is very true that there has been over-trading, and that there have been commercial failures. But would there be no over-trading if protection were in full swing? It is just as possible surely for speculative purchases to be made of articles manufactured in the colony as it is of articles imported. So long as sanguine speculators can get easy credit, so long they will make purchases in advance of their bona fide means, with the hope of making a large profit, and with the certainty that if they lose they can soon clear themselves of their difficulties and begin again. Prices would vary, and these variations would tempt to speculative movements, even though our imports were greatly decreased. America, which is the constant admiration of our protectionist friends, can surely not be quoted as a country in which protection has made insolvencies a thing unknown.

It is quite true that artizans are occasionally found in our streets or dispersed about the colony who cannot obtain full pay at the trades to which they have been apprenticed. But this would happen also under a system of protection. There would be inequalities then as now between the supply and the demand. There would be at times glutted markets from over-production as well as there are from over-importation, or the purchasing power of the community would be diminished occasionally by calamities and losses, and then work would be slack in all those occupations which for the time are not required. It is a dream to suppose that a foreign market would always relieve us of our surplus stock. It is absurd to suppose that we can compete in the markets of the world with manufacturing countries where population is dense and money cheap. It is precisely because we cannot compete with those countries that the supply even of our own home market, protected as that market is by the charges and risks attending a consignment sixteen thousand miles away, that we are asked to protect our own producers. If we cannot beat the foreigner at our own doors, how can we possibly beat him in the markets of the world, where we too have to incur charges of shipment? Under a protective system our market for our manufactures will be mainly our home market, for as to the small outlying dependencies to which Sydney acts in the capacity of an entrepot, they would be supplied more cheaply with goods shipped from bond. Our home market, however, is and must be a limited one, and its demands would be very quickly satisfied, and more than satisfied.

Mr. Allen proposes to protect agriculture equally with manufactures. We see at the present moment in South Australia an over-production of cereals, and a gradual closing of the only foreign market that is available for the surplus. The consequence is, that prices have fallen to an unremunerative level, and that many farmers have become insolvent. So easy is it, when the market is limited, to over-produce.

Mr. Allen endeavours to ward off some of the arguments which he cannot tackle by urging that the protection he wants is only to a moderate extent, and need not last beyond the time when agriculture and manufactures have taken a firm footing. After a few years of the artificial regime it is assumed that the local interests will have become so prosperous as to be able to hold their own against foreign competitors. No supposition could be more fallacious. Protection when it once effects a lodgment in the legislation of a country, is very hard indeed to get rid of, as witness the anti-corn-law struggle in Great Britain, and the immense control which the Protectionists in America have obtained over the legislation of that country. Protection has existed now for many years in America, and the manufacturers there have enjoyed many signal facilities, yet we do not find them ready to concede the gradual diminution of the protection they enjoy. On the contrary, they incessantly ask for more and more. And not only do they ask it, but they obtain it. The Morrill tariff is a signal instance of the strong vested interests which a protectionist party, once encouraged, is able to acquire, and of the growing influence it is able to exercise in the Legislature to the detriment of the commerce of the country. For the people of this colony to assent to the introduction of a protectionist system, under the notion that we should be able easily to dispense with it in a few years, would be a most disastrous delusion. Any concession made to the protectionist clamour would be sure to be followed by other demands on our endurance still more extortionate. Nor would it be possible to resist these demands, for having once induced men to enter into occupations for which there was no natural scope, it would be necessary to keep on giving them that further degree of protection which circumstances might show to be necessary to enable them to make headway.

Australian Coal.—By direction of the Admiralty, some very interesting experiments, extending over several days, have just been concluded at the steam factory department at Woolwich Dock Yard, with a view to test coal from the Australian mines. Samples from eight different pits were fully experimented upon by competent officers from the factory department, and the result is highly important, as proving that Australian coal, for the purpose of steam navigation, is fully equal to any now in use, and would not, as formerly supposed, choke up the flues and produce an extraordinary amount of smoke. A report to this effect has been made, and which I have taken from Keene's Bath Journal. It should be observed that eight casks of coal were sent expressly from Newcastle to be tried by the Admiralty, and a portion forms part of the above experiment.

A public meeting was held at the Court-house last night, in favour of State-aid. It was numerously attended, and several resolutions were passed favourable to the continuance of State-aid. Clergymen of the Church of England, Catholics, and Presbyterian ministers attended the meeting, and spoke in favour of the resolutions. Dr. Machattie and Mr. J. C. White spoke in favour of the abolition of State-aid to religion.

The meeting passed off very quietly.

BRISBANE.

The Queensland and Samson steamers arrived last night from the Northern ports. No fresh news from the diggings.

A reward of £100 has been offered for the discovery of gold-fields in the neighbourhood of Gladstone.

The Government has determined henceforth to carry out all public works by contract. Superintendents are to be appointed in the various districts to see the contracts properly executed.

MELBOURNE.

Friday, 8 p.m.

The Lancashire distress fund accumulates steadily.

Brebner, miller, of Geelong, called a meeting of his creditors.

The City of Hobart (s.) brings news from Otago to the 12th. Snow was still very deep on some of the diggings. There was little doing at the port, the roads being almost impassable to the gold-fields.

Quartz reefs were being found, and orders were despatched to Melbourne for machinery.

Vessels sailed were the Aloe for London, Fair Tasmania for Sydney, Robert Passenger for Mauritius, and Vanguard for Callao.

Weather fine.

ADELAIDE.

Thursday, 7 p.m.

There will be a discussion in the House of Assembly to-morrow on a motion of which notice has been given, That the present system of mail communication with England is unsatisfactory to the public interests of South Australia, and that tenders be called for the conveyance of the English mail via King George's Sound for three years.

No transactions in flour. Prices nominal at £13 12s.

Weather, warm.

Friday, 8 p.m.

Mr Townsend's motion to resume the branch mail service to King George's Sound, and calling for tenders for three years, was carried to-day in the Assembly.

The delegates appointed for the Intercolonial Conference in Melbourne on the assimilation of the tariff are the Colonial Secretary and Treasurer, and Mr. Glyde, M.P.

Transactions in the flour market are limited; prices nominal. Holders of wheat are desirous to sell at a shade lower price.

Arrived.—Fanny Fisher, from Sydney; Eliza Carry, from London; British Trident, from Newcastle.

The Sydney Monthly Overland Mail.—The summary of colonial news, for transmission to Europe by the Bombay, will be published in this journal on Monday morning, the 21st instant. Advertisers are particularly requested to send in their favours early. The insertion of advertisements sent in after seven o'clock this (Saturday) evening cannot be guaranteed.

The Herald Summary.—Orders for extra copies should be lodged with the counter clerk this (Saturday) evening. Our friends from the country are reminded that orders to post for England will be too late after Monday morning's mail.

Bathurst.—We regret to understand that on inspection of the Bathurst branch of the Bank of New South Wales, the manager there had been suspended, pending further investigation. There is, we learn, an ascertained deficit of about one thousand pounds, the bank holding a guarantee policy of the European Assurance Society, which would more than cover the amount.

Distress in the Manufacturing Districts of Lancashire.—We are happy to state that the example set by the gentlemen connected with the firm of Prince, Bray and Ogg, has not passed without notice. Already the gentlemen engaged on this journal have set on foot a subscription list which is being liberally responded to, and, we understand, that other large establishments are also preparing lists for the like charitable purpose.

Volunteer Rifle Match.—Sydney Battalion.—Right v. Left Wing.—This match will take place this afternoon, at half-past two, at the Volunteers' Rifle Range. It will be remembered that, on the 10th May, the new Rifle Range was opened by a similar contest, the right wing were the conquerors by 47 points. Since the Volunteers have had the advantage of this new shooting ground, target practice has been pretty constant, and as most of those who will take part in the match to-day have, by their shooting in the course of musketry instruction, qualified themselves to wear the marksmen's badges, it is probable that the practice will be good. The conditions of the match are as follows:—Ten men from each company, each man to fire five rounds at each range—300, 500, and 600 yards. The first shot will be fired at 2.30 precisely, it is, therefore, necessary that all competitors should be on the ground, at least a quarter of an hour before that time.

Rifle Practice at Balmain.—The competition for the belt presented by Captain Jaques is still carried on with great spirit. On the 15th instant a match took place, the ranges being 300, 500, and 600 yards. Five shots each range. Sergeants Webb and Spence scored 29 each (16 points and 13 hits). In firing off the tie sergeant Spence missed, and sergeant Webb scored an outer, thus winning the belt for the fourth time. On the 18th (the ranges and number of shots being the same), Corporal Longfield was the winner, his score being 27 (15 points and 12 hits), the next highest scorer being sergeant Webb, who made 25 (16 points and 10 hits). This belt has now been fired for ten times, and has been won four times by sergeant Webb, twice by sergeant Spence, once by sergeant Thomas, once by private Woolnough, once by private Mason, and once by corporal Longfield. It has to be won three times consecutively before it becomes the property of any one person.

All-England Eleven.—Mr. Charles Lawrence, of the above, has handed to us for publication the following extract from a letter he received by the last mail from Mr. H. H. Stephenson, the captain of the team. We are sure it will be read with pleasure. "My dear Charley,—You will be glad to hear we all got home safe on the evening of the 13th of May. The Surrey people gave us a very kind reception, and on Thursday we dined with the Surrey gentlemen, at the London Bridge Hotel. They also gave us a benefit at Western's Music Hall, in fact, at every place we have been to since our return, we are besieged with questions about Australia, and every one is treating us with so much kindness, that I feel sorry that you are not here to share in our happiness; but I feel convinced, from the treatment we all received while in Sydney and the other places, that every care will be taken of you. So mind and be a good boy, for you are sure to do well among such kind people. Remember us all to them; and I trust that the time will not be long before we again pay another visit to Sydney. Do not neglect writing to me by every mail, and, &c., H. H. Stephenson. Mr. Charles Lawrence, Tattersall's, Sydney."

Appointments.—The following appointments appear in yesterday's Government Gazette:—Charles John Pitfield Lydiard, Esq., to be Superintendent of the Northern Division of Police, vice Scott, from the 1st instant; Frederick Duncan Mant, Esq., to be a Sub-Commissioner of Goldfields, also to be an officer for the purpose of determining the extent and position of the claims to which any person or company is entitled under any miner's right, lease, or license, issued under the provisions of the Act of the local Parliament 25 Victoria, No. 4, and for marking such extent; Mr. John F. Frazer to be engineer of the Steam Dredge, Shoalhaven, to date from the 1st instant; Railway Branch—Mr. Edward Owen, goods clerk, Sydney, to be station master at Sydney, and Mr. Thomas Carlisle, to be goods clerk, Sydney; Electric Telegraph Branch—Mr. R. C. Wills to be station master at Wollongong; Mr. Charles Smith to be line inspector at Wollongong; Mr. J. J. R. Ferris to be an operator in the chief office, Sydney.

Notice to Free Selectors.—A circular has been addressed to the various land agents, stating that some doubts having arisen as to the power of individuals in co-partnership to purchase lands by selection, the matter has been referred to the Attorney-General, who is of opinion that such purchases can be made; but that in such case, it will be incumbent on both partners to fulfil the conditions of residence as strictly as if the land had been purchased by one person only.—Goulburn Herald.

A Child Killed at Camberwell.—On Sunday morning last a fine little girl of eight years of age, the daughter of Daniel Dillon, a man in the employ of Mr. Lethbridge, of Bridgman, had set fire to a tree that he was anxious to get rid of, and it was in the process of being burned down when Mrs. Dillon sent the girl to call in her father to breakfast, when the tree fell and killed the poor child on the spot.—Singleton Times.

Fort-street National School.—Yesterday afternoon there was an exhibition of needlework and drawing in the girls' department of the above establishment, and in order to make it still more interesting, a number of carefully-selected extracts from the works of the best authors of history and fiction were read by the scholars in the senior class, and there was also some excellent singing by the united classes, under the direction of Mr. Chislett. Professor Smith, Mr. G. K. Holden and a large number of visitors attended, the great proportion being ladies, who appeared to take a very lively interest in the proceedings, and which, to some extent, had been provided with a view to their entertainment. The class at present numbered about 240; and Mr. Wilkins, the Inspector of National Schools, presided over them. The rooms in which the articles exhibited were laid out was tastefully decorated with evergreens, and really, to those educated in such matters, the numberless specimens of useful and fancy needlework set out must have been a great treat—crochet of various devices, beadwork, and embroidery decorated the tables, which we were glad to see also plentifully supplied with less ornamental but more useful things pertaining to the comforts of home. The drawings were also very creditable, and it is gratifying to find this beautiful art is being cultivated in public schools. Specimens of writing were exhibited, and evinced great proficiency in that branch of education. The readings consisted of extracts selected from the writings of Miss Martineau, Macaulay, Addison, Ruskin, Goldsmith, Dickens, Washington Irving, Sterling, and Everett; and the emphasis, pronunciation, and distinctness with which they were read, elicited the admiration of the visitors—the character of Louis XIV, the old man's grief for the death of Little Nell, the first return of Columbus, and "Shaking Hands," deserving special notice, the latter being Everett's humorous remarks on the origin and working of this mode of friendly greeting. The Commissioners having provided prizes for the most proficient, Mr. Wilkins addressed a few remarks to the pupils, in which he stated that considerable difficulty existed in deciding that point, many of the girls being in the present instance equally deserving, and therefore it became necessary to select those who for some time past had been specially noticed for their perseverance and general good conduct; he also wished them to understand that the prizes then to be given would not interfere with those to be awarded at Christmas. Mr. Holden presented the different prizes, which consisted of useful articles, such as workboxes, ladies' companions, drawing materials, &c., to the young ladies. On concluding this agreeable portion of the afternoon's programme, the girls of the fifth class, through Mr. Wilkins, presented Miss Heydon, the head mistress of the school, with a very handsome papier mache inkstand, with pearl penholder and paper knife, for which they had subscribed, as a mark of esteem and respect for their teacher, and, in presenting it, Mr. Wilkins bore testimony to the zeal and ability of the lady to whose care the education of so large a number of the female youth of the colony was confided. In accepting the gift, Miss Heydon replied in appropriate terms; the children then sang the National Anthem in true loyal style, and the visitors proceeded to inspect the exhibits, which terminated the proceedings.

Queensland Cotton.—While the public mind is so warmly excited by the distress which prevails in the manufacturing districts of England, it is gratifying to find that a beginning has been made towards sending home supplies of cotton, which in the course of time will doubtless have the effect of rendering England less dependent upon America for her supplies. We are glad to hear that Messrs. George A. Lloyd and Co., the agents of the Ipswich Cotton Company, have just received, by the steamer Telegraph, thirty bales of cotton, being part of the produce of their plantations during the present year. This is the first shipment made by this company, and is eminently satisfactory, as placing beyond a doubt the practicability of raising cotton in Australia. The parcel will be sent on to England immediately, and a few bales will be placed in Messrs. George A. Lloyd and Co.'s offices for inspection by any parties interested in the culture of cotton. We understand that a similar quantity will be sent up for shipment to London in a few weeks, and there can be no doubt that in the present state of the home market these shipments will be very remunerative. We sincerely hope that in the course of a few years the exports of cotton from these colonies may equal the exports of wool—and this not only for the sake of colonial interests, but also as tending to relieve the distress at home. The cotton appears to be of excellent quality, and well got up.

Tea Meeting to Welcome Dr. Steel.—A tea meeting was held in the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street, yesterday evening, to welcome the Rev. Dr. Steel, who has recently arrived from England, and is just entering upon his duties as pastor of the Free Church, Macquarie-street. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, flowers, and festoons of evergreens. The attendance at tea was unusually good, the large hall being filled to excess in every part. After partaking of the excellent fare—which in point of variety and abundance left nothing to be desired—the company rose, and adjourned for a short time. The tables were then cleared, and the company re-assembled, the hall being filled to such an extent that a large number could not obtain seats. On the platform we observed the Rev. J. Cas[illegible] (moderator of the Synod of Eastern Australia), Rev. S. C. Kent, Rev. W. M'Intyre, Rev. J. Voller, Rev. J. B. M'Cure, Rev. A. Buzacott, Rev. T. Smith, Rev. J. L. M'Skimming, Rev. J. Eggleston, Rev. S. Ironside, Rev. S. Humphries, Rev. W. Ridley, Rev. R. Hartley, Rev. A. Thomson, Rev. W. A. Murray, Rev. B. Johnson, Rev. M. Johnston (from New Zealand). Professor Smith, Mr. J. Caldwell, M.L.A., and other gentlemen. The proceedings were opened with devotional exercises, after which Professor Smith (one of the commissioners who were appointed to wait upon Dr. Steel, in England, to induce him to come out, and who has recently returned from Europe) was called to the chair. The chairman made some appropriate prefatory remarks, and then called on Dr. Steel, who was received with loud and long continued applause, to address the meeting. The rev. gentleman delivered a long and eloquent address, embracing a variety of topics appropriate to the occasion. He spoke of the many pleasant associations that he had broken off in the fatherland to come out to the colony—of coming among people who, with one exception, were quite unknown to him, and of the warm reception they had given him—of the welcome that had been extended to him by the various ministers of religion in the city and suburbs, not only those in the church with which he was connected, but in other churches also—of the work which was before him as a Christian Minister, both as regarded his own particular church and others in the community. The address was listened to with marked attention throughout, and it was received with evident satisfaction by all present. The meeting was subsequently addressed by the Rev. J. L. M'Skimming (Presbyterian), Rev. T. Smith (Episcopalian), Rev. J. Eggleston (Wesleyan), Rev. W. A. Murray (Baptist), A. Thomson (United Presbyterian), Rev. B. Johnson (Congregational), Rev. J. Voller (Baptist), Rev. S. C. Kent (Congregational), Rev. R. Hartley (Primitive Methodist), and several laymen, each speaker welcoming the Rev. Dr. Steel in the name of the denomination to which he (the Speaker) belonged. Thanks were accorded to Professor Smith for his conduct in the chair, to the ladies for their services at the tea table, and to the gentlemen who decorated the Hall. The proceedings, which were deeply interesting throughout, were closed at ten o'clock with the doxology and benediction.

Scots' Church, Pitt-street.—A tea meeting of the teachers and children in the Sunday school in connection with the Scots' Church, Pitt-street, took place yesterday evening. Afterwards a public meeting was held in the church, at which addresses were delivered by the Rev. Dr. Fullerton, the Rev. Mr. Craig, the Rev. J. Dougall, and other gentlemen, who enforced the duty devolving on parents to train up their children properly, and pointed out the manner in which that training was to be effected. Anthems and other sacred pieces were sung by the choir of the church in the intervals between the addresses.

The Opera.—During the week Auber's charming Fra Diavolo has been produced twice to excellent houses, and with the success which now seems to attend every representation by the present company. Mdlle. Duraud achieved a further triumph in the impersonation of the heroine. Yesterday Verdi's Traviata was produced, and the house was again filled to overflowing. Madame Escott fully sustained the impersonation of a difficult character, and pourtrayed the consumptive, suffering, and erring Violetta to the end. Mr. Wharton again appeared, and was received most favourably throughout. This evening his Excellency the Governor and suite will patronise the opera, when Lucretia Borgia will be produced.

Another Mail Robbery.—We are informed that news of another mail robbery was received by telegraph in Sydney yesterday. The mail alluded to is the Northern mail from Armidale. It is reported that the mail was stuck up, and the mail robbed, at a place called Wallabada. Further information will doubtless be received to-day.

Coroner's Inquest.—The City Coroner held an inquest at the Bush Tavern, Burwood, on Thursday last, on the body of a woman named Margaret Macdonald, aged fifty years. It appeared from the evidence that the deceased and her husband (who in early life fought under the Duke of Wellington in the Peninsula, but is now nearly blind) had been inmates of the Parramatta Benevolent Asylum, and left that establishment only a few days since. On Tuesday last they started from Parramatta with the intention of walking to Sydney, but they got drinking on the road, and remained for the night at the Bush Tavern. After the deceased went to bed she got up for the purpose of getting more rum, which was served to her. She then lay down on the bed, face downwards, and in the morning she was found dead. Verdict—"Died from suffocation when under the influence of drink."

Melancholy and Fatal Accident.—We regret to have to record the death of Mr. Charles Albert Johnston, son of Mr. David Johnston, of George's Hall, near Liverpool, which was caused, on Thursday last, by the accidental explosion of his gun. He left his father's house, accompanied by his brother; and, on arriving at a slip panel about four miles from home, he got off his horse to let down the rails, having passed through the fence, he was in the act of lifting his gun after him through the rails, when the charge exploded, the shots shattering the lower jaw and lodging in the back part of the head and neck, causing almost instant death. His body was almost immediately conveyed to his father's residence. This terrible occurrence, as may be imagined, has caused intense grief in the family and amongst the friends of the unfortunate young man.

The Silver Mine at Moruya.—A gentleman who arrived from Moruya on Thursday, informs us that on the previous day he had seen a splendid piece of silver, which had been procured at the new mine. It was perfectly solid, and was upwards of three inches in length; and from what he tells us there is but little doubt that this mine will be one of the greatest richness.—Braidwood Dispatch.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

Friday, July 11th, to July 18th.

The most interesting circumstance to note of the past week is the promptitude with which a movement was initiated to assist in relieving the distressed operatives in Lancashire and other manufacturing districts of England. The matter, mooted by the Hon. the Speaker of the Assembly at a meeting on Monday evening, was at once taken up by the Mayor, and a public meeting has been arranged for this afternoon (Saturday) in the Masonic Hall, at which his Excellency the Governor will preside. It is hoped that although the time is short, a very goodly sum will be raised to transmit by way of a first instalment by the mail leaving on Tuesday next. Already subscriptions are being made, and a active committee is appointed to carry out the work of benevolence.

In political matters there has been little of importance occurring, beyond the great debate on the Bill for abolishing or prohibiting future grants in aid of public worship. Two evenings have been devoted to the discussion of this important subject, and the debate stands postponed till Wednesday next. It is anticipated that the Government will carry the second reading of the bill by a majority of seven or eight votes.

In our last notes we mentioned the capture of two men, named Turner and Dacey, supposed to have been concerned in the Lachlan escort robbery. It now appears that the desperadoes were subsequently rescued by their companions. Still later intelligence however, informs us that Dacey has been retaken, and that the gold and money found upon the two have been safely brought into Forbes by the police.

Mr. Michael Molloy, late overseer to Mr. O'Brien, of Belle Vue Store, Braidwood, was recently found drowned in a water-hole under very mysterious circumstances. The depositions taken at the inquest have been forwarded to the Attorney-General for perusal.

A City Mission, on the plan and principles of the London City Mission, has been established in Sydney, and a very influential committee chosen to watch over its working.

Another association, under the name of the Home Visiting and Relief Society has also been established as one of our benevolent institutions. This society has for its main object the seeking out of persons of the better classes who may, through sickness or misfortune, be in temporary distress, and by affording necessary assistance enable them to surmount their difficulties.

Mr. Torrens, the well-known author of the South Australian Act for simplifying the conveyance and registration of titles to real property, is at present in Sydney, and under examination by a select committee of the Assembly, as to the principles and working of his system in the sister colony.

A match at pigeon shooting came off on Saturday last, at Homebush, the competitors being Messrs. G. Hill and M. Josephson, against Messrs. R. Heaney and J. Payton—£50 a side, twenty-one birds each, twenty-five yards rise. The contest, which was witnessed by a large number of persons, terminated in favour of the latter gentleman by three birds.

A man named Thomas Wilson has been remanded by the city Bench to Victoria, there to answer a charge of having, at a place called Big Hill, in the country of Bourke, wilfully murdered one Edward Cookson, on the 23rd May last.

The American citizens resident on the Lachlan gold-field, have presented an address and testimonial to Mr. R. Merrill, late United States Consul for New South Wales, and have likewise adopted an address to President Lincoln, expressive of their unabated attachment to the Union, and their hope that the present disastrous war may be brought to a speedy and satisfactory termination.

The complimentary ball annually given by "The Bachelors" of Sydney came off on the 11th instant at the Exchange. The spacious rooms were beautifully decorated with flags, and also with wreaths of evergreens. Upwards of five hundred invitations were issued, and there were about that number of guests present.

A young girl, named Elizabeth Hayman, died recently at Lower Pitt Town, from the effect of injuries received by her clothes taking fire. She had gone out for a drink of water, and feeling cold on returning indoors, went to the fire, when unfortunately her clothing ignited, with the sad result already stated.

Intelligence was brought by the English mail of the death of the Baron von Barnkow, the brother-in-law of his Excellency Sir John Young. In consequence of the bereavement, Lady Young's reception, which was to have been held on Monday afternoon, was put off, and his Excellency was prevented from attending the meeting of the Home Visiting and Relief Society.

News by the mail states that the Bishop of Sydney and Mrs. Barker have reached England in good health. The Bishop had been invited to address the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, at its June meeting.

It is said that a baronetcy will be conferred on Sir Daniel Cooper, now acting as one of the commissioners for New South Wales at the great Exhibition.

The troupe of Maories lately arrived from New Zealand are to perform at the Lyceum theatre this evening, in a drama illustrating native customs and habits.

A letter from a distinguished colonist says that the samples of cotton sent home from New South Wales are considered by the jurors to be the finest they have ever seen. In the present state of the cotton market it would fetch four shillings a pound.

A new steamer for the Intercolonial S. N. Company is at present building, at Mr. Chowne's, Pyrmont. She is to be on the diagonal principle and of large stowage, with a light draught of water, so as to suit the Moruya or Wogonga trade. The engines and boilers are to be furnished by Messrs. P. N. Russell and Co., and it is expected the vessel will be ready for sea in about three months.

A man named John Moore died at the Infirmary on Saturday, from the effects of an accident he met with on the 31st December last. He was working at a house in King-street, and fell from a platform, severely injuring one of his ankle joints. Attempts were made at first to avoid amputation, but this had eventually to be resorted to; but about this time new symptoms appeared, and the sufferer gradually sank under them.

It appears from a statement made in the Assembly by the Secretary for Lands that Mr. Dalley, one of the immigration lecturers, was to leave England on his return to Sydney on the 15th June. He would consequently have left before the letter of recall arrived home.

The Steampacket Hotel at Newcastle caught fire on Tuesday morning last, and was burned to the ground in less than an hour, also a small wooden building adjoining. The Bank of New South Wales, Smith and Co.'s store, and several other buildings, were saved by the exertions of the Volunteer Fire Brigade. A poor child, aged five years, we regret to add, perished in the flames.

A copy of the Catalogue of the Exhibits of New South Wales, prepared for the Great Exhibition, has been received in Sydney. The catalogue itself is a beautiful specimen of printing, and the introduction condenses much important information, heretofore scattered over many public documents.

The A. A. Company have secured convictions against some of their newly-engaged miners, for breach of agreement in not proceeding to work. In one case, that against J. Bergin, for absconding from hired service, defendant was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of £5, or seven days' imprisonment.

A telegram from Adelaide states:—"The contractors at present carrying the mails from England to the Cape of Good Hope, offer to put on suitable steamers from Southampton to Australia, calling at the Cape. The estimated passage is under fifty days. The subsidy required is £78,000, and the contractors are open to do an extra service, so that Australia may receive her mails fortnightly."

At the Central Police Court, on Thursday, a man named Peter Hornby was committed for trial on the charge of having, by false representations, and a forged letter, obtained from John Hamblin, innkeeper, £3 in money, and board and lodging to the value of £3 10s. The letter in question purported to be from Mr. Rotton, M.P., but was at once pronounced to be spurious by that gentleman.

The Escorts arrived yesterday with the following quantities of gold-dust:—Western, 9412 oz. 19 dwts. 1 gr.; Southern, 4675 oz. 15 dwts. 4 grs.

A social tea-meeting was held in the Hall of Temperance last evening, to welcome the Rev. Dr. Steel, A.M., who has arrived in the colony as pastor of the Free Church, in room of the Rev. Mr. Salmon. The formal induction of the Rev. gentleman into his charge, took place on Thursday evening.

A German weekly publication has been started in Sydney bearing the title of "Der Heimathsbote" (The Home News). It is a quarto size, and contains eight pages. The matter consists of carefully selected extracts from foreign and colonial papers, presenting a good digest of general news.

The Maitland Mercury of Thursday has the following:—"Many of our readers will hear with regret of the sudden and very unexpected death of Mr. John Borthwick, J.P., of East Maitland, one of our apparently most healthy and strongest townsmen, and who only a week since appeared in his usual health. Death was caused, on Tuesday night, by bilious remittent fever, taking a very rapid course."

NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY.

The Speaker took the chair at twenty-nine minutes past three o'clock.

PAPERS.

Mr. DALGLEISH asked the Secretary for Works when the papers relating to the formation of the road from the Parramatta Road to Glebe Island, ordered by this House on the 17th June last, will be laid upon the table?

Mr. ARNOLD, in reply, stated that in the course of official routine these papers had been scattered through different departments, and were not at present obtainable. Inquiries had been made for them, and as soon as they were collected they would be laid upon the table of the House.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were presented and received as follows:—

Against Matrimonial Causes Bill: By Mr. WISDOM, from Dean O'Connell and certain inhabitants of Morpeth. By Mr. HART, from residents of West Maitland; and by the same hon. member from residents of Liverpool. By Mr. COWPER, from certain members of the Church of England.

In favour of Grants for Public Worship Prohibition Bill: By Mr. COWPER, from certain inhabitants of Mudgee.

COMPETITIVE EXAMINATIONS.

Mr. HOLROYD asked the Colonial Secretary if it be the intention of the Government to introduce the system of competitive examinations of candidates for employment in the public service?

Mr. COWPER, in reply, said he could only say that the Government had arrived at no determination on the matter. The subject had been repeatedly under consideration, and on a former occasion an address was moved in the House in relation to it. He then expressed doubts as to the satisfactory working of the system. Although it was to some extent acted upon, it was not adopted as a system. In one case, where a vacancy occurred he was asked by the head of the department to be allowed some choice before the appointment took place. He (Mr. Cowper) gave him a selection from three or four candidates, but after examination in the history of the Barons and Henry VIII., or something of that sort, a young gentleman fresh from school learning was successful against other competitors of great experience and ability, and who were much better qualified for the office. The subject was an interesting one, and as soon as he could afford time he would take into consideration whether some modified system of the kind could not be introduced with advantage. He had been much surprised at the papers presented by young gentlemen in England educated at classical schools. He did not believe that the papers of any applicants in New South Wales would exhibit such a deficiency of intelligence.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

Mr. WALKER asked permission of the House to be allowed to make a short personal explanation. In addressing the House upon the State-aid question, he was interrupted by remarks from the hon. and rev. member for West Sydney at a point when he (Mr. W.) was referring to the fact that several ministers under the Voluntary principle had been induced to abandon their position and had taken up other pursuits. When interrupted, he had adduced, among other instances, that of a gentleman now present, and who for a considerable time had filled the position of a Parliamentary reporter on one of the daily papers. In consequence of that observation, a letter appeared in one of the morning journals signed "William Ridley?" He (Mr. W.) would be the last member in the House to introduce personalities into discussion, and he would not have individualised any one except under the necessity of justifying statements of his to the veracity of which he was challenged. He would now refer to a few facts connected with the career of this gentleman.

Mr. SPEAKER did not think the hon member would be in order in so doing. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. WALKER said he was accused of having stated that this gentleman had abandoned the ministry and had taken to other pursuits, and that fact was denied.

Mr. BUCHANAN submitted that the hon. member had no right to bring under notice what occurred out of the House.

Mr. SPEAKER thought it was only open for the hon. member to state what he meant when making the statement he was explaining.

Mr. WALKER said what he meant to assert was, that this gentleman had abandoned the ministry and had taken to a more lucrative pursuit. He did not intend to convey that he had given up his clerical character, or that he had abandoned his badge of office, or the prefix to his name of the word "rev."; but that he had left off preaching where he had been stationed at the Manning River—that he had abandoned it, and had taken to other pursuits of a more lucrative character. [Mr. BUCHANAN: "How do you know that they are more lucrative?"] If the hon. member desired particulars, he (Mr. W.) could give them. But as Mr. Speaker had ruled that he was precluded from entering upon these particulars, he would not trouble the House further than to remark, that it appeared very singular that, although no name was mentioned, the cap fitted this gentleman remarkably well.

BRIDGE OVER THE HUNTER.

Mr. BURNS asked the Secretary for Works, "What steps have been taken by the Government for the erection of the proposed bridge over the Hunter at West Maitland."

Mr. ARNOLD, in reply, stated that in the first instance a survey was made by a gentleman engaged for the purpose, and not in the Government service, and it was found to be of no use. Another survey had therefore to be made, and the plans were now in course of preparation.

BRIDGE AT SINGLETON.

Mr. HANNELL desired to ask the Secretary for Works, "If it was a fact that two gentlemen had been prevented from taking tracings of the plans for the proposed bridge at Singleton, and whether it was intended to extend the period during which persons would be allowed to tender for the work?"

Mr. ARNOLD said he had not heard of the fact. If it was the case, the only reason he could assign was the one given yesterday, viz., that the tracings were not requisite. The only information required by tenderers was the quantities, and these could be obtained without the necessity of taking tracings.

Mr. LUCAS said a gentleman who desired to tender for the bridge over the Nepean had complained to him that he was similarly precluded from getting tracings of the plans.

Mr. ARNOLD replied that this must be a misrepresentation, for the plans of the latter work were not yet completed. He had not yet even seen the plans himself. It was impossible, therefore, that one could have obtained tracings of these plans.

Mr. LUCAS said this might be the case, but certainly the gentleman referred to was not able to gain any information at the hon. member's office.

Several hon. members having risen in succession to state that a like complaint had been made to them in reference to the taking of tracings,

Mr. ARNOLD again rose and said, that as this matter was of some importance he would like to state at once that he knew of only one person that had been refused tracings, and he was believed to require them not for the purpose of tendering, but in order to sell copies to contractors. Now, as hon. members were aware, only a limited period was allowed for the inspection of these plans, and if persons were allowed to monopolise them for the purpose of taking tracings, it was manifest that an injustice would be done to others who were really desirous of tendering. At the same time if it was the opinion of the House that these tracings should be taken, he had no objection to extend the period of tendering for three, four, six, or even twelve months, in order to meet that desire. This, however, would necessitate a delay in proceeding with the erection of the works, which the Government wished to avoid. He had already stated, in reply to another hon. member, that the Government were endeavouring to hit upon some mode of having these plans, as a rule, multiplied for circulation in all the districts of the colony, as well as in the sister colonies, so as to ensure a greater amount of competition; and so soon as some process could be devised for the purpose it would be carried into operation.

Mr. HANNELL said he believed a month's extension of the period for tendering would meet the case in the present instance.

The matter then dropped.

WEST MAITLAND.

Mr. BURNS desired to ask the Secretary for Lands, "When the Government intend to align the streets of West Maitland?"

Mr. ROBERTSON said that many months back the Government had determined that, though West Maitland was a private township, and the public revenue had received nothing from the sale of lands there, yet, considering the large amount of population there, they would go to the expense of aligning the town; thereupon instructions were given to the Surveyor-General to cause the alignment of the town, but certain difficulties had arisen. First, the streets as dedicated to the owners seemed to be in places insufficiently wide. They were also objectionable in other regards. These difficulties had prevented the Government from carrying out their wishes, but he desired to impress upon honorable members who were interested in this question, that the Government had long since determined upon taking this duty on themselves, though the difficulties in the way were great, in consequence of the land having been private property.

BATHURST.

Mr. ROTTON wished to ask the Secretary for Public Works, "1. Has the Government any intention to construct any works for the drainage of the Bathurst gaol? 2. When does the Government intend to make the proposed additions to the Bathurst Court-house?"

Mr. ARNOLD said that it was not probable that any drainage work would be carried on in the gaol until some more general system of sewerage for the town was determined on. When that was agreed to, the drainage of the gaol would be executed. With regard to the second question: Some time ago he gave directions to the Colonial Architect to prepare a plan in order that tenders might be called for additions to the Bathurst Court-house. These additions were with the view of enabling the magistrates to hold courts of Petty Sessions whilst the District Court was sitting, and was not aware whether anything else was contemplated or required. This having been only a small work, seemed to have been overlooked amongst the many large works now in hand.

THE WESTERN LINE.

Mr. ROTTON begged to ask the Secretary for Public Works, "Is there any objection to state what progress has been made towards the construction of the Nepean Bridge, and when it is probable it will be completed? 2. When it is intended to call for tenders for the Great Western Railway Extension west of Penrith?"

Mr. ARNOLD said the working drawings for the bridge would be completed in about three weeks, and the probable time when the erection of the bridge would be completed would be about two years. Tenders would be called for so soon as the working drawings were finished. The contracts for the Great Western Extension would be called for in about three months. There were certain forms that the Railway Act rendered necessary that would have to be gone through.

THE BENTLEY CASE.

Mr. WISDOM desired to ask the hon. Colonial Secretary, without notice, whether any report had been received from the police authorities respecting a case that had caused some excitement at the time in the public mind—he alluded to the Bentley case.

Mr. COWPER said that when a question was put to him in the House some time back in reference to this matter the Inspector-General of Police was not in Sydney. Before entering into a consideration of the subject, he (Mr. C.) had put himself in communication with the officer of police within whose province this matter fell, and who had made numerous enquiries on the subject. He saw that officer repeatedly, for as it seemed to be the desire of the House that the Government should offer some reward in the case, he desired to inform himself of all the circumstances. He could not find any grounds to justify him in coming to the conclusion that a reward should be offered; and he had, therefore, postponed coming to a conclusion until the Inspector-General of Police should return to Sydney. When that officer came back to Sydney, he had taken an opportunity of consulting with him on the subject, and had then arrived at the conclusion that the case was not one for the Government to take up, the circumstances being peculiar, and such as would hardly justify the Government in offering a reward. No report had been made to the Government or to the Inspector-General—that is, no official report; but he believed that the officer who had been entrusted with the case had furnished the Inspector-General with a narrative of the circumstances extending over several months; and the result had been, after seeing that narrative, that the Government had not felt it necessary to interfere farther in the matter.

MATRIMONIAL CAUSES BILL.

The House then went into committee for the further consideration of the Matrimonial Causes Bill.

Clause 6. "Judicial Separation," being under consideration,—

Mr. DALGLEISH asked leave to withdraw his amendment—the insertion of the words "or habitual gambling," after the words "or habitual drunkenness" in the last line of the clause.

Mr. HART opposed the withdrawal of the amendment. He considered a predisposition to gambling quite as exceptionable as habitual drunkenness. Incompatibility of temper was also another ground, and as they had begun to legislate, he did not see why that should be passed over.

The question was put that the words "or habitual gambling" be so added.

A division was called for, and the amendment was rejected on the following division:—

Mr. HARPUR begged to move the insertion in the same clause, of the words "incompatibility of temper." (Hear, hear.)

Dr. LANG said the hon. member for Singleton had a high literary authority for what he proposed—no less than that of John Milton, but in that he stood alone.

Mr. HARPUR considered that the omission of the words moved for in the last amendment had destroyed the bill. He made this motion chiefly to have an opportunity of saying as much.

Mr. HART supported the amendment at some considerable length. He argued that the bill was wholly unnecessary; but, as the House had determined upon legislating, it became their duty to make the measure a perfect one. In the Deserted Wives and Children's Act provision was made for a judicial separation on circumstances that implied an incompatibility of temper. It might, therefore, be fairly argued that such a clause ought to be inserted in this Act. He should support the amendment of the hon. member for Singleton.

Mr. EGAN thought the hon. mover must see that there was no chance of his passing this bill, and he would now move that the Chairman leave the chair.

Mr. WISDOM: Does the hon. member move that the committee report progress?

Mr. EGAN: No, I don't want any progress reporting. (Laughter.)

The motion that the Chairman leave the chair was put and negatived on the following division:—

Mr. EGAN moved that the words "or impotency" be inserted. His object in moving this amendment was to make the bill as contemptible as possible, so that it might not obtain a hearing elsewhere.

After some remarks from Mr. BURNS and Mr. MORIARTY,

Mr. HART, in a speech of about an hour's duration, expressed his disapprobation of the proposed legislation, and could not support the amendment unless there were some limitation as to time.

Dr. LANG would not assist in passing an amendment that would be discreditable to the House. The matter of this amendment was already provided for in our legislation.

The amendment was withdrawn.

The question upon the clause, as previously amended, being put,

Mr. HARPUR expressed his opposition to the amendment which included habitual drunkenness as a ground of separation. He had authority for saying that drunkenness was, in some cases, a disease arising from mental or physical causes, and he thought it would be inflicting great cruelty upon the wife and disgrace upon the husband to make it a basis for judicial separation. The outcry against drunkenness at the present time was something like a mania; he did not think it characteristic of this age, nor of this country. He attributed the attempt to legislate upon this subject as arising from a desire for innovation.

Mr. HAY did not approve of the amendment making habitual drunkenness a ground for judicial separation; he thought it was introduced injudiciously and without due consideration. But the proper way to deal with it would be to move the recommittal of the bill. He would vote in favour of the clause, but would support the recommittal of the bill for the reconsideration of the clause.

Mr. MORIARTY did not think it right to vote for a clause which he did not approve of with a view to its amendment on recommittal; they had recently become cognisant of circumstances showing the danger of that course. He was opposed to the clause now it had been clogged with grounds for separation other than that great and only offence which he thought would justify a dissolution of the marriage tie.

Mr. HART said English law did not provide for judicial separation, except on the ground of adultery coupled with cruelty; and thus far the precedents and decisions of the Imperial law courts would afford us a guide in dealing with such cases, but when we introduced several other grounds for separation, we should be opening up a sea of troubles. He thought it ill-advised to confer ecclesiastical jurisdiction upon our law courts which we would be doing by passing this clause, which enabled parties to obtain judicial separation. A judicial separation far less objectionable because it admitted of a voluntary re-union was provided for in the Deserted Wives and Children's Act.

Mr. EGAN cautioned hon. members against building their hopes on any recommittal of the measure for the purpose of striking out the objectionable amendment, and warned them that the best way, the only way in fact to get rid of it, was to vote against the clause altogether. Otherwise they might be deceived, as those members were who had hoped in the same manner to strike out the word "religion" from the Church and School Lands Bill. He begged to move that the chairman leave the chair and report progress.

The question was put, when the committee divided, and the motion was negatived by 21 to 4.

Mr. R. FORSTER pointed out that, apart from the objectionable amendment referred to, the clause was inconsistent with other provisions contained in the bill, more particularly with the 13th and 18th clauses.

Mr. BURNS advised those hon. members who objected to the insertion of the words "habitual drunkenness" that their safest course would be to vote against the clause.

Mr. HART reiterated his objections to the clause, and submitted that it would operate most injuriously on all classes, by preventing reconciliations, and calling into existence a sect of low people who would set up matrimonial divorce offices, and drive a lucrative trade from expensive litigation of this kind.

Mr. RAPER opposed the clause at great length, and concluded by moving that the Chairman do now leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again at a later hour of the day, but he subsequently withdrew the amendment.

Mr. HART wished to point out that the clause was unnecessarily stringent. It might so happen that the husband might be away in the islands of the Pacific for a considerable time (under circumstances which could not be readily described) for even more than two years. It would be rather hard in many cases if the wife were enabled to obtain a judicial separation. He proposed that the term be extended to five years.

The CHAIRMAN said that amendment could not be moved.

Mr. RUSDEN had always considered that marriage was an indissoluble tie, but such did not appear to be the view upon which this bill had been framed. The divorce a mensâ et a thoro would be likely to lead to a state of immorality that must be highly injurious to the best interests of the community. He should vote for the recommittal of the bill upon this clause, considering it to be most objectionable, and if the clause were not altered, he should vote against the third reading.

Mr. BUCHANAN felt it his duty to oppose this clause, considering that no cause should be considered as a valid ground for a divorce but adultery. That, and that alone, was the only proper ground for separating man and his wife. By passing this Act, in which drunkenness was made a ground for divorce, the house was doing that which could not but be productive of the worst possible effects. A designing woman might drug her husband, and call the neighbours in to see him in the state to which her wickedness had reduced him, and so secure evidence upon which she could get a judicial separation. It was a matter of deep importance, and he trusted hon. members would take it into their very serious consideration. There was nothing to show what "habitual drunkenness" was to be supposed to be. He should oppose the clause, and thought that they would do well to throw out the bill upon it.

Mr. LEARY begged to draw attention to the fact that the separation was a judicial separation obtained only after due enquiry, and not a divorce a vinculo. It was such a separation as protected the aggrieved party, but did not prevent any reconciliation when the offending party ceased to offend. The particular clause objected to by the hon. member for Morpeth was one which could not but have a beneficial effect, and protect the innocent from the misery and violence that was caused by a partner debased by habitual intemperance.

Mr. BUCHANAN said that if the clause merely referred to brutality and abandoned drunkards it would be well enough; but then it included men who might be purposely and designedly made drunk on three or four occasions in order that their partners might procure a separation. There were men who from some unexplained phenomenon took to drinking for, perhaps, a fortnight and were never sober, and would any Judge not consider this to be sufficient ground for a separation? And yet these men might be most exemplary as husbands and fathers at other times. This was the danger of the clause, as it laid one party open to the designs of another. By this amendment the very happiness of society would be unhinged, and nothing but misery and unhappiness could result from its operation.

Mr. MORIARTY said there was no guarantee that the bill would be recommitted, or even if recommitted that it would be amended, and he therefore warned the House not to accede to any motion that depended upon something of which they were not certain.

Mr. ARNOLD regarded it as no hardship on a husband, even if he were separated from a wife who could be so designing as to make a husband drunk merely for the sake of separation. In such a case, it would be preferable, if only for the sake of the children, that they should not always have these scenes under their eyes, that a separation should take place. The children would not suffer, because the fact of the separation would not relieve either parent from the duty of supporting the children. Wherever parties could not live together without leading a cat and dog life, they would be better separated. It would be better for themselves, for their children, and for society at large that it should be so.

Mr. R. FORSTER objected to the clause by reason of its being so very loosely worded. He had already shown the difficulties he saw in it, and no explanation had been offered. He must assume, then, that these difficulties could not be removed, and he must therefore vote against the clause. In the first place, there was no distinct definition of the words "habitual drunkenness." This alone was a fatal mistake. Then, again, as regarded adultery, if a petition were sent in, either by the husband or wife, on the ground of adultery, then the Judge, under the 16th clause, would be bound to pronounce a sentence of dissolution of marriage, and not of judicial separation under the present clause. Adultery was made a ground of dissolution of marriage in the 13th clause, whilst in this it was a ground of separation only. As regarded desertion, that also was provided for under the Deserted Wives and Children Act, and it seemed to him absurd that they should have two Acts dealing differently with the one thing.

Mr. RUSDEN thought the words "habitual drunkenness" so vague that it involved a mere matter of opinion. He was not at all inclined to leave the decision of a matter of opinion to a Judge of the Supreme Court. He quite admitted all the evils and all the misery that existed in the marriage state in some cases; but his objection to such a bill as this was that it opened the door in such a way as to make people designing or cruel in order to force their partner to a separation. That was the view in which he regarded it, and which appeared to him to be so objectionable as to compel him to give his vote against it.

Mr. HARPUR said that marriage was for better for worse, and not a mere tie of convenience. If all these causes were to operate as grounds for judicial separation, why was not the system carried out to its legitimate end by altogether dissolving the marriage tie, and allowing the parties to marry again. If this were not done, the parties separated would form adulterous connections, and a large amount of vice and degradation and demoralisation would ensue.

Mr. WINDEYER said the objections of the hon. member for Armidale were easily answered as regarded the discrepancy between the present clause and the 18th clause, in which the Court was directed to pronounce a decree of dissolution of marriage. Now the 13th clause showed the kind of adultery that was to authorise a decree of dissolution, which was adultery with cruelty; and the 18th clause referred to that adultery and to no other; whereas this adultery in the 6th clause referred to adultery without cruelty. Now he was inclined to go even farther than this bill, and would give the same right to the wife as was given to the husband. The consequences, morally or socially, of adultery, were the same to either party. As to the words "habitual drunkenness" not being defined, he was astonished at the hon. member as a lawyer making such a remark, when this was a question that was being repeatedly brought before the Courts for their decision. The Judge in numerous cases was constantly being called upon to direct juries as to what was to be considered as habitual drunkenness. There was nothing, then, in these objections to the clause. He was not inclined to go with hon. members who dreaded the evils that were likely to follow upon the passing of this Act, because it was the same with all Acts, since there was not one which a wicked or designing person might not in some way take advantage of.

Mr. R. FORSTER explained, in reference to remarks by Mr. Windeyer, that he (Mr. F.) had stated it as expressed by the House that it was intended to abolish all these restrictions that surround the word "adultery," and leave that word alone, and he (Mr. F.) argued that if it was left in this state it became exactly the same as in clause 16, and that the provision in clause 16 applied to both.

Mr. BUCHANAN denied that there was any provision in English law like this amendment—that habitual drunkenness should be a ground for dissolving the marriage tie, and be held judicial separation to be equivalent to a total dissolution in effect. Cases of drunkenness might easily be bolstered up so as to obtain the verdict of a court. No ground should be made for dissolving the marriage tie except that of adultery. He should oppose the clause in every shape and form.

Mr. DRIVER supported the clause. He had known many cases in which wives and families had been made wretched for life by the drunken habits of husbands, and he had also known cases where wives had been as bad, squandering the earnings of the husband in drink, and leaving children without the necessaries of life. He thought this was almost as strong a ground for separation or divorce as adultery.

Mr. DALGLEISH observed that in nine cases out of ten drunkenness led to adultery. Drunkenness should be treated as other diseases, by placing the persons in a hospital or under some salutary restraint.

Dr. LANG said from his reading of this clause, as amended, he did not think it applied to the merely jovial though regular drunkards, but was intended to apply to a different class. The wives and children of the affectionate and moral drunkards that had been alluded to were not likely to pursue them into the Supreme Court for a judicial separation. But he knew cases of drunkenness to which this clause would apply with much benefit, persons being, through the perpetual intoxication of husbands, subjected to the most galling misery conceivable. He should be sorry to make any other ground for divorce than that given in Scripture—namely, adultery; but judicial separation was something different—it was merely extending the protection of the law to cases in which we found an individual so destitute of all sense of obligation—of justice and propriety—that it was necessary to rescue a miserable wife and children out of his hands. The crime was sometimes on the other side, when the husband was as much to be pitied as the wife, and required as much protection as his better half. (Laughter.) Since the opening up of our gold-diggings he had known persons to go away, leaving their families in destitution; and after spending all their earnings on the diggings, coming home and seizing upon the property accumulated by their wives and children, who were cast back to the same state of wretchedness and destitution as they were in before he left them. He (Dr. Lang) thought it was the duty of the Legislature to step in and protect the innocent and suffering portion of such families. He believed there was a feeling in the community in humbler walks that desertion for a certain period gave the party deserted a claim for the dissolution of the marriage; but he could not conceive that desertion alone, although contemplated in this clause as a reason for judicial separation, should be regarded in any degree as a reason for divorce. He should vote for the clause.

Mr. HART said that in addition to the objections already urged against the clause, he could not approve of the tribunal which was to decide on these applications. To force this duty on the Judges, in his opinion, would be most impolitic—in fact tantamount to imperilling our civil rights; these functionaries, as a rule, not being empowered to decide questions of fact. He would, therefore, propose the following amendment, to come in at the end of the clause—"Provided always, that the issue of fact shall be determined by a jury, in like manner as other issues of fact are determined in the said Court." He felt this was a necessary amendment, and that the Judges themselves would be relieved by this onerous responsibility being removed from them.

Mr. HOLROYD pointed out that the amendment was unnecessary, as subsequent provisons empowered the Judges to send the issue to a jury whenever they desired so to do.

Mr. HART was not satisfied with the explanation given, and would prefer to have the proviso added to the clause.

The question was put, when the amendment was negatived by a majority of 20 to 13.

Mr. BURNS, amid cries of "oh, oh" and "question," again rose and expressed his objections to the clause, warning the committee of the great danger of legislating for exceptional cases.

Mr. EGAN moved that the chairman do leave the chair, and ask leave to sit again this day six months.

The question was put, and negatived by a majority of 23 to 7.

The motion that the clause as amended, stand part of the bill, was next put, and passed on the following division:—

Clause 7. (Application for restitution of conjugal rights or judicial separation may be made by husband or wife by petition to Court &c.,) was next moved.

Mr. HART objected to the bill, that, as it involved a money question, inasmuch as the 38th clause dealt with the question of costs, whilst the Act could not be worked without entailing great expense, the bill ought to have been originated in committee. The 41st clause gave the Court power to make rules in regard to fees, and thus to tax the people, and, therefore, it ought to have been originated in the same way as all other taxing measures.

Mr. WISDOM ruled that the measure had been properly introduced.

Mr. HART objected to the words "restitution of conjugal rights, or." The object of the bill was to separate man and wife, and if there were so much hardship in the connection as had been shown, surely hon. members would not seek to join them together again after they had been once separated. He moved as an amendment that these words be omitted.

This amendment was put and negatived on division by a majority of 19 to 4.

Mr. HOLROYD moved that the chairman do leave the chair, report progress, and ask leave to sit again this day week.

Mr. EGAN moved as an amendment that the committee sit again this day three months.

The amendment was put and negatived on division by a majority of 21 to 4.

The original motion was put and carried on division by a majority of 21 to 4.

The House resumed, and progress was reported.

On the question that leave be given to sit again this day week,

Mr. HART moved as an amendment that leave be given to sit again this day month. The question was an important one, and had been very warmly debated in committee, and he now made this motion for the purpose of giving persons outside this House an opportunity of expressing an opinion upon it.

The amendment was put and negatived on division by a majority of 20 to 5; the minority being Messrs. Hart, Egan, Burns, R. Forster, and Hoskins.

The original motion was put and carried.

There being loud cries of "adjourn,"

Mr. COWPER moved the adjournment of the House, which was carried on the following division:—

Ayes, 18.

NEWCASTLE.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Yesterday evening a meeting was held in the large room of the Co-operative Store, Blane-street, for the purpose of expressing sympathy with the miners locked out by the A. A. Company. The room was crowded at a few minutes before eight o'clock.

Dr. Brooks took the chair, and opened the proceedings by reading the advertisement, and said it had been suggested that not only should the working men have been called together to express their sympathy with the miners, but also the inhabitants, storekeepers, and others should have been mentioned; however, this was a mere omission, and not intentional. Whatever might arise out of this dispute it was evident the miners had, throughout this trying occasion, obtained the respect of every class of the community—the miners had shown no desire or tendency to use any illegitimate force, which in a country like this became more apparent. They had seen an amount of self-denial under the most aggravated circumstances, which the miners had borne with a peaceful demeanour.

Mr. Curless, one of the miners' delegates, stated in clear terms the cause of dispute between the A. A. Company and the miners.

Mr. Rhodes moved the first resolution. "That this meeting having heard the statement of the delegate in behalf of the miners' lock-out, are of opinion that the rights of labour have been invaded in their case by the acts complained of, and hereby expresses its sympathy with the cause of the men 'locked out,' and its determination to render them whatever moral and pecuniary support that may be within its power."

Mr. Budd seconded the resolution.

Mr. Bowery supported the resolution by a few remarks.

Mr. Hall rose from the body of the meeting, and said he did not think Mr. Curless had sufficiently explained the rule of the Union as regards justifying the discharge and employment of men at the will of the masters. Being an old miner, he instanced a case wherein he was discharged without any apparent cause, except it was for daring to speak to the manager or proprietor; he considered he was equal to any man, and did not wish to see the Union protect unbecoming characters, but to protect a man for being discharged through going to speak to his master.

Mr. Curless observed he did not wish to evade the question. The Union did not wish to interfere with the rights of capital. The rules were posted up, and, as long as the rules were not broken, the men would not be discharged. The speaker here instanced Holmes' case who, he said, was put in another man's place against his will. Finding this would cause a squabble, the miners thought it would be better to let Holmes have the pit to himself than allow him to take another man's right. There were 800 miners, and he could safely say there was not another name in that district that had met any interference from them. After instancing three or four cases of men being discharged for not acting up to the rules, the speaker went on to say—the leaders, as they were called, often explained matters to the masters, shewing them in their true light.

The motion was put and carried unanimously.

Mr. J. Doyle moved the second resolution, "That a permanent committee be formed, consisting of the various trades in this city and neighbourhood, for the purpose of taking such steps as may be deemed necessary to enlist the sympathy and support of the trades generally throughout the colonies in behalf of those miners now locked out, and that the following be the said committee with power to add to their number:—Messrs. Doyle, Southern, Bowery, Claxton, Bubb, Rhodes, Allen, Walsh, Wallace, Blackie, Carmichael, Bedford, Newton, Pringle, Bryant. He said it was the miners' case to-day, and it might be theirs to-morrow; it only needed each trade to form a Union, they would then be able to support each other—such a thing as a strike would then be impossible. He thought the case of the strike of the London masons a good example. When the masters sent to Germany for masons they (the Germans) held a meeting, and resolved not to work one single penny under the English masons. He felt assured an appeal had only to be made to other trades, and they would be supported. Poverty forces a man to do many a thing, and no doubt, poverty had a good deal to do with bringing these men from Melbourne. He had witnessed a confinement in the town of one of their number, and they had not a shilling in the world. It therefore could not be expected they could have resisted the temptation of ten shillings a day, although many had found out they could not earn two and tenpence a day. In conclusion he would earnestly urge on them at once to commence a union among working-men. (Immense applause.)

Mr. Carmichael seconded the resolution.

Mr. Bedford supported the same, and hoped shortly to see a union of trades in all the cities, towns, and villages throughout the whole of the colonies.

Mr. Dewey offered a few remarks, and observed he supposed they would see some strong leading articles in the Sydney Morning Herald on Trade Unions. The speaker went back to some twenty or thirty years ago, pointing out the failure of unions in those days was in consequence of drunkenness, but now the morals of the people were greatly improved. Their attention was now more occupied in reading and improving their minds.

The Chairman, before putting the motion to the meeting, observed the committee was not a temporary one, but intended as a permanent one with power to add to their number, by which means it was hoped they would be joined by the other colonies.

The resolution was then put and carried unanimously.

The Chairman drew the attention of the meeting to a portion of an article in the Sydney Morning Herald, which referred to the restriction of 11s. 4d. a day. The article in question was moderate, but at the same time it was obvious to every one the writer had a leaning towards the capitalist.

Mr. Curless, at the intimation of the chairman, stepped forward, and said he felt deeply interested in the miners' attempt to get their co-operative pit to work. The reason they had not made much progress in the work was for the want of funds, which was partly attributable to the narrow-mindedness of some of themselves; they had now resolved the public, more especially the working classes, should be able to obtain shares. They had a 9-feet seam of coal at Wallsend, which was said to be, by competent judges, the finest coal in the colony. They had 600 acres of land with the seam running all over it, and they were only stopped from bringing the coal to market for want of capital. Their rules were simple and easily understood, and a prospectus would shortly be issued. The Bill for Incorporation was now before the House, and immediately it was passed they would commence operations. The main object of working this mine was to prevent strikes in future. If the trades co-operate heart and hand with us and we with them, in less than twelve months there will be no danger of further strikes. The price of the shares would be £5 per share in 6000 shares. If the public would not take shares they would borrow money and work the pit themselves. He (Mr. Curless) observed the Press was always ready at the call of the capitalists, and ever willing to wield its influence against the working man; he alluded to the Newcastle Chronicle, when on a late occasion it was put forth there were only 300 bona fide miners on the ground. Now he most emphatically contradicted this statement, as every miner from the various lodges was under a fine for non-attendance; he found that 750 bona fide miners attended at the late meeting at Waratah. In conclusion, he would desire to say a few words to the new hands if any were present. The miners wished to meet them (the new hands) at three o'clock on Monday afternoon next, to take some steps to endeavour to bring about a termination of the present strike.

A vote of thanks having been accorded to the chairman, the meeting separated about half-past ten o'clock.

The Maori Chiefs: New Drama at the Lyceum.—This evening, Dr. M'Gauran's Maori troupe, consisting of seventeen warriors, three females, and one child, will make their first appearance at the Lyceum Theatre, in a new drama, written expressly for their performance by Mr. R. P. Whitworth. The piece entitled Whakeau, or the Pakeha Chief, is to be illustrated by elaborately-painted and authentic scenery, and to be supported by the dramatic company. The drama is well written and skilfully adapted for displaying, in a very effective and interesting manner, the singular manners, customs, ceremonies, and traditions of the Maori race. The story of the piece is as follows:—A Mr. Mortimer and his daughter are settlers in New Zealand, the neighbours of a missionary named Spencer, who has a considerable influence amongst the Maori tribes. The surrounding country is beset by Maories, who are hostile to Europeans, and are headed by a pakeha warrior called Whakeau—a European who has adopted the manners and customs of the natives, and has been raised by them to the dignity of a chief. The real name of this man, an outlaw escaped from the hands of justice, is Mark Thornton, who, from feelings of revenge, resolves to carry off the daughter of the man he hates. Whilst he is hovering around Mortimer's settlement with this nefarious design a vessel arrives at an adjacent port, having on board a nephew of Mr. Mortimer named Jenkins, and a gentleman named Charles Vernon, the betrothed of the young lady. The White Maori, by a stratagem, induces Miss Mortimer to go to meet her lover on the beach where traditional ceremonies are being performed by a friendly tribe of Maories. She proceeds thither and is carried off by Thornton and his ruffian companion Red Bill. The lover arouses the friendly natives and they all start off in pursuit. The Missionary also assists Mr. Mortimer in his endeavour to regain the young lady, and obtains the aid of adjacent Maori chiefs, whose proceedings form striking incidents in the drama. They visit a pah or fortified village, and there, after witnessing games and dances, and hearing native songs, they gain tidings of the treachery of the Pakeha Maori. The god of war is consulted with all due ceremony, and, after an exciting war dance, they hasten on their mission. Whakeau has lodged his prize in a cave under a waterfall, a place unknown to all but to himself and Red Bill. Ultimately however, Mr. Mortimer's nephew Jenkins finds out the retreat. Whakeau, fearing interference on the part of the natives, assumes the garb of a Sorcerer or Kopare, and consecrates the entrance of the cave in the ancient form. The friendly tribe advance, break through the tapu of the impostor Whakeau, and rescue the lady after a desperate conflict, in which Whakeau is slain. Miss Mortimer is restored to her father and her lover.

The Royal Lyceum Theatre.—In spite of great counter-attractions elsewhere, the audiences at the Lyceum continue to increase nightly, the performances being such as to well deserve the liberal patronage which this theatre receives from the play-goers of Sydney. Mr. Frederick Younge has become a great favourite, and is well supported by the company. On Saturday last the fine tragic play of Pizarro was presented, after which Mrs. F. Younge delighted everybody present with "The Spanish Serenade," accompanying herself with her accustomed taste and artistic skill on the pianoforte. The farce of Brother Bill was selected as the afterpiece. On Monday was produced, under the able management of Mr. C. W. Barry, the splendid burlesque of Once upon a Time there were Three Kings, which was received with great applause by a crowded house, and has been played every evening since with great eclat. This amusing and brilliant extravaganza is from the pen of Planche, and is certainly one of the most elegant of his numerous productions, abounding with point, sparkling with wit and humour, and yet never approaching to anything coarse or indelicate;—more scarcely need be said. The scenery throughout is new and beautiful. Some of the scenes deserve an especial commendation—for example, the Port of Rantipolis, the Verdant Valley, and, above all, the concluding Mechanical Scene representing the "pliant parting and plastic palms." Any one of these scenes would establish the reputation of Mr. Wilson as an artist of no mean ability. The story commences with the arrival of Prince Brutus the Crooked, Commander-in-chief of the army (Mr Frederick Younge) at Romantica, the seat of his father's Government. To this royal father, who rejoices in the euphonious name of King Perriwigulus (Mr. Harlow), he brings news that he has reduced the Peaceful Isles, secured the Crown, and brought away the young Princess Carpillona (Mrs. F. Younge) as a prisoner. The charms of Carpillona have inspired Brutus with a strong passion for her, but disgusted at his hideous appearance and cruel and vindictive disposition, she treats his affection with supreme contempt. Old Perriwigulus determines to protect Carpillona from the importunities of his son, who, fired with love and ambition, urges the army to revolt, effects a revolution, seizes on his father's power, and announces his determination to marry the reluctant Carpillona on the very next day. Whilst the Princess is bemoaning her fate, the Fairy Amazona (Miss Lizzie Naylor) appears and presents her with an enchanted bouquet. By means of this wonder-working gift Carpillona effects her escape, and finally reaches the Verdant Valley, where Queen Dominanta (Miss Fanny Morgan), King Placid (Mr. Sam. Howard), their daughters Phillis and Chloe (Miss Corcoran and Miss Bryce), and their foster-son Corin (Mr. Walsh) are living, disguised as shepherds and shepherdesses. Circumstances reveal to the ex-king and ex-queen that Carpillona is their daughter whom they have deplored as dead from the time of her infancy, when they were deposed and driven from the throne of the Peaceful Isles. Corin and Carpillona fall in love with each other (as a matter of course) and Corin luckily proves to be an excellent match, inasmuch as he is the rightful heir of the respectable Perriwigulus. The lovers are consequently made happy, Brutus is put down with a high hand, and there is peace and happiness in Fairy Land. Such is an outline of the story, in which, as we have already intimated, many clever local hits have been introduced. This sparkling extravaganza was followed on Monday and Tuesday by the drama of the Jacobite, in which Mrs. Frederick Younge's Polly Pottle was received with great and well deserved applause. She was also eminently successful as Lucy in the beautiful drama of The Cabinet Question, which was played immediately after the burlesque on Wednesday and Thursday. On the same day the last piece presented was the admired comedy of the Queen's Husband, in which the principal characters were ably sustained by Messrs. Barry, Appleton, and Younge, and Miss Fanny Morgan, and Miss Naylor. As Donna Francesca, the Princess Regent, Miss F. Morgan made a very decided hit. On Friday night the performances consisted of the Burlesque and the Drama of Robert Macaire. The principal piece announced for representation this evening is a new play, entitled Whakeau, or the Pakeha Chief. It is a drama in which the troupe of Maori Warriors are to appear. It illustrates the manners and customs of the aboriginal natives of New Zealand.

New Wool Press.—We have been shown a model of a wool press, designed by Mr. Lane, of this township, by means of which the inventor calculates that a very considerable saving of labour will be effected. In form it differs little from the ordinary screw press at present in use in most woolsheds, the difference chiefly consisting in some additions of a simple, though ingenious kind, by which the press is rendered more of a machine, and less requiring manual labour in its working. In Mr. Lane's model there are two boxes, made so as to be easily taken to pieces, the sides fitting together by means of hooks, and so soon as the bottom box is filled, the top box, which is of the same dimensions as the other, is put up, and filled from above, the screw being fixed into a wrought-iron winch, which is placed on a tramway, so that the screw can be moved back, leaving the hole clear for the filling of the boxes. One pressure thus suffices to fill the bale. The posts, instead of being fixtures, are fitted with strong hinges at the bottom, and kept in their places by bolts at the top. When the bale is filled, these bolts are removed, and the boxes fall open; the bale can then be seen as it stands, and, when completed, tipped over without resorting to leverage with a crowbar. Mr. Lane informs us that he will be happy to show the model, and explain the working of it, to any one desirous of judging for himself of its practical utility.—Pastoral Times, July 11.

Free Selection.—The Tamworth Examiner states—The total quantity of land taken up in this district, under the 13th clause of the Crown Lands Alienation Act, from its coming into force up to the 20th June, appears to be 2520 acres. It is alleged that a much larger quantity would have been taken up if maps showing the lands open for selection could be obtained by the public. These are not to be had, but we believe the maps will be shortly forwarded by the Surveyor-General, when it is expected that a large quantity will be taken up in the western portion of the district.

Moruya Silver Mining Company.—At a meeting of the shareholders of the Moruya Silver Mining Company, held last Friday, at the offices of the Company, Spring-street, Sir William Manning, Messrs. R. J. Want, J. L. Montefiore, Saul Samuel, and J. B. Rundle, were elected the first directors of the company, and Messrs. Brewster and B. Buchanan, auditors.—Braidwood Observer.

COLONIAL MANNERS.
To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—I would like if, in reply to this, Monsieur Bontemps, or some other professor of etiquette moving in the best society here, would tell me what is the polite thing when I receive an invitation to a party, whether the same be a religious breakfast, a dilletanti lunch, a serious dinner, a mild tea and cakes, or a "dance all night and go home with the girls in the morning." If I intend going, am I to write and say so? If I do not, am I to write so in so many words, or am I to beat about the bush and tell a fib about a previous engagement, or being about to leave town, or the death of a third cousin just heard of? Or, in either, and if so which, case am I to treat my hostess with silent contempt?

I ask these questions as I have just seen the annoyance to which my worthy friend, Mrs. Caudle, has been put from something less than a thousand, but more than half the guests, she invited to a little dance not replying to her invitation, so that she was at a loss to know how many jellies and custards to get ready.

My notion is—but it may be old-fashioned—that it is only the proper thing to answer a letter—yea or nay.

I am, Sir, yours, faithfully,
BAILEY, jun.

THE DISTRESS IN LANCASHIRE.
To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—In your issue of Thursday appears the report of a preliminary meeting, headed as above, held at the Metropolitan Hotel on Wednesday afternoon. At that meeting, as I understood, resolutions were passed to call a public meeting to-morrow, and also to have special collections in all the churches, on behalf of "the Lancashire poor." I was therefore very much surprised to see in your issue of this morning an advertisement, signed W. Hanson, in which the meeting is said to be called "for the purpose of taking immediate steps to raise a subscription for the relief of the suffering operatives of Great Britain." Now, Mr. Editor, if our subscriptions are to be divided amongst the operatives of other parts of Great Britain, God help the suffering Lancashire poor. I can only say I gave my humble mite yesterday in the full belief that it was for their relief only that I subscribed, and I am quite sure many others did the same. If there is great distress in other parts of the manufacturing districts of Great Britain and Ireland, let us have another meeting, and contribute to that also; but do not let us obtain money from our fellow-townsmen for one purpose, and then apply it to another. That is not honest. I am told that the advertisement which appears in your issue this morning was sent to your office at a late hour last night or early this morning, and was originally worded "suffering operatives of Great Britain and Ireland," and that it was returned to the honorary secretary, to know if it was correctly written, when it was sent back to your journal with the words and Ireland struck out. Why was this done, and the words Great Britain retained? It should have been altered to "Lancashire Poor," or have been inserted as originally written.

A LOVER OF TRUTH.

Woolloomooloo, July 18.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—You would highly oblige me by allowing me a space in your valuable paper for a good purpose. As there may be many of my countrymen who cannot read English, I annex for those the German translation.

GERMANS.—When the German hears of the distress of his fellow-creatures his heart is always touched by an overwhelming feeling of sympathy and charity. When Hungary was suffering from a flood, the consequence of which was the greatest loss of lives and property; when Hamburgh was visited by that great fire, when in Holland and on the banks of the Rhine thousands of families had lost their property by an inundation, it was the Germans who sent thousands, tens and hundreds of thousands, to give relief to their fellow-beings; wherever distress is great, the German considers it his duty to alleviate it. Let us then show that our character and feelings have not been altered in this beautiful country, our adopted fatherland, where we enjoy the same benefits of liberty as our English fellow citizens, of a liberty which our fathers and brothers at home scarcely are able to imagine. Many of us have attained here welfare and riches, and most of us, whatever class they belong to, live in better circumstances here than they did at home. You, no doubt, have heard of the great distress in the country of our English fellow citizens, which has not been brought about by the unfortunate sufferers themselves, but which is a consequence of the American war. The privations to which a very large number of our fellow-beings at present is exposed are terrible, and we may anticipate that the next mail will bring tidings of even greater misery than that of which we are now aware.

Let us, therefore, prove our gratitude for the benefits we enjoy in Australia; let us not stand in the back, but let each of us spend as much as possible. I know you will not be slow in giving a tangible proof of your sympathy. Qui cite dat, dat bis.

GERMANUS.

Deutsche Landsleute,—Wenn der Schrei unverschuldeten Unglucks und grosser Noth zu den Ohren des Deutschen dringt, so wird sein Herz von den Gefuhlen des Mitleids und der Christen-liebe erfullt und er halt es fur seine heilige Pflicht, der Noth seiner Mitmenschen, zu welcher Nation sie auch immer geboren mogen, nach Kraften zu steuern. Als Ungarn durch jene grassliche Ueberschwemming litt, die den grossen Verlust an Menschenleben and Eigenthum im Gefolge hatte; als Hamburg von jener schrecklichen Feuersbrunst heimgesucht warde; als in Holland und an den Ufern des Rheines tausende von familien ihre habe und ihr gut in den Alles gerstorenden und fortreissenden Fluten untergehen sahen; da waren es Deutsche, die tausende, ja hunderte von tausenden hinsandten, um die Noth ihrer nebenmenschen zu erliechtern. Beweisen wir nun, dass unser Nationalcharacter und unsere Gefuhle dieselben sind in diesem schonen Welstheil, unserem zweiten Vaterlande, wo wir mit unsern Englischen Mitburgern gleiche Wohlthaten der Freiheit geniessen, einer Freiheit, wovon unsere Vater und unsre Bruder in der Heimath kaum eine Idee haben und die sie so lange vergebens anstreben. Viele von uns sind hier zu Wohlstand und Reichthum gelangt, und gewiss die Mehrzahl von uns leben in bessern Verhaltnissen hier, als in der Heimath.

Ohne Zweifel habet auch Ihr von der schrecklichen Noth gehort, welche unsre Nebenmenschen in dem Lande unsrer Englischen Mitburger betroffen hat und nicht ihrer eigenen Schuld beigemessen werden kann, sondern eine Folge des Krieges in America ist. Die Entbehrunger jener Unglucklichen sind erschrecklich, und wir mogen mit der nachsten Post Berichten noch furchtbarern Elenetes entgegen sehen. Lasset diese betrubende Veranlassung ein Aufrus an uns sein, unsere Dankbarkeit fur die Guter zu beweisen, die wir auf Australischem Boden geniessen; lasset uns nicht zuruckstehen, sondern nach Kraften beisteuern; aber bringet bald Euer Scharflein, Reiche und Minderbeguterte, denn wer zeitig giebt, giebt doppelt.

EIN DEUTSCHER.

VOLUNTEER MOUNTED RIFLES.
To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—Your columns have very recently contained several letters with reference to the Volunteer Mounted Rifles from anonymous correspondents. The best cause frequently suffers from the tone and character of its advocates, and where they are declared with a manly candour, the public can estimate the value of the opinions offered, but when the shelter of a blue coat or some other fancy term is made available, they cannot form any idea whether the writers understand the subject they attempt to handle, or have any military claim to military criticism.

Fortunately the military experience of all our Volunteers is on an equal footing, and when a Volunteer ventures to offer publicly his opinion of his own or any other corps without attaching his name to it, the public may be excused from taking further notice of it.

I do not stand up as the apologist of the Volunteer Mounted Rifles; as a corp they need none. The attacks that have been made upon them can only excite the old and nervous, and faint praise is harmless. The cause cannot be forwarded by anonymous writers, however thin the guise they assume, neither can it be retarded by their scurrility or abuse.

Unfortunately, the Volunteer Mounted Rifles have, like the first Battery of Artillery, laboured under difficulties, I cannot call them great, but they have hitherto proved adhesive; and until the pattern set by the First Battery is adopted by the troop with reference to their officers, a very great difficulty will exist to their active progress. With reference to the present commandant, it may be said with justice, since the establishment of the troop his public duties have prevented his giving any attention to its promotion; with him the desire and ability have been opposed by close attention to duties of greater importance to the colony than the drilling a troop of Volunteers.

The Adjutant has resigned, and it is possible that some few have not been satisfied with him, but certainly not on the score of incompetence; his address at drill has been soldierly, and he has always endeavoured to render the troop efficient as soldiers. It is true at times a harsh expression has escaped him, but those who occasioned such were more to blame than the Adjutant.

The cornet gave every promise of a good officer, but he retained his commission long after his other duties prevented attention to the troop he has now resigned. The Lieutenant alone remains, and it is probable that his estimate of himself is slightly different from mine and other members of the troop, and as I have never seen any of his military qualifications, I cannot speak of them.

It is, however, unfair, Mr. Editor, to condemn the troop simply because they have been unfortunate in their selection of officers; the fact that fifteen can be got together under such circumstances shows they have some power of endurance. Perhaps the first blow to the troop was their voluntary discharge of police duties at night during six months, while "Blue Coat," and "Another Blue Coat," and "Volunteer," and an "Old Dragoon," were comfortably tucked in in bed; and it is much to be regretted that the military zeal of many of the citizens of Sydney should be of such a questionable character to render it necessary for them to urge this as a reason for not joining us.

I am, however, happy to say that the great majority of the troop are still prompted by the desire which led them to enrol themselves as Volunteers, and they will treat as idle prattle any suggestion to disband. They still hope that the resignation of their officers may prevent the performance of an unpleasant duty, and remove the only barrier to the progress of the corps which, properly officered, will take and keep the first place in public opinion, and render efficient service as a cavalry arm.

With reference to the Light Horse, it is only necessary for me to say the person once advertised as the adjutant of the Light Horse is the trumpeter of the Volunteer Mounted Rifles.

The troop have a meeting next Friday—perhaps some of these matters may be discussed. I hope we shall have a full muster, and that those who have any complaints to make will come to the point.

In conclusion, I may state I have been connected with the troop since its first formation, and if any one declined the troop by reason of the dress they selected as uniform, it must have been some one who (like the great public) was not sworn in nor offered himself as a member. If the dress of the Volunteer Mounted Rifles prevented him from joining the troop, we lose nothing by his absence.

Yours obediently,
WILLIAM HELLYER, Sergeant-Major.

CHARCOAL AS A DEODORISER.
To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—I think it is due to the present Mayor of Sydney, that the public should know of his prompt and efficient action in the abatement of a long complained of nuisance, as well as of a sanitary illustration of the deodorising power of charcoal.

A few months ago I drew up a memorial respecting the very offensive effluvium from the sewer obelisk in Hyde Park. The use of charcoal as a deodoriser was suggested as an effective and inexpensive remedy. Having procured the signatures of several of my neighbours, the memorial was presented to the Mayor by Dr. Aaron and myself, the City Engineer also being present. Both His Worship and Mr. Bell took up the question with alacrity, and gratings loaded with charcoal were ere long placed within the obelisk. No effluvium was thenceforth perceptible, until after the recent rains. On receipt of a brief note a few days ago, informing the Mayor that the old effluvium had returned, and stating my surmise that the charcoal was wet, and therefore powerless, he acted on the hint forthwith. The effete charcoal proved to be quite wet, but its peculiar and disgusting odour showed it had not been used in vain. It is now replaced by fresh charcoal, and, I believe, attention has been paid to keeping it dry.

You will doubtless consider, Mr. Editor, that it is well to place on record this successful sanitary use of charcoal, as well as the promptitude and courtesy of our chief civic officer.

I am, Sir, respectfully yours,
JOHN C. NEILD, M.D.

THE PROPOSED NEW INSOLVENT ACT.
To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—Are the public aware that the above proposed Act repeals that palladium of liberty achieved for this colony by the great Robert—now the Right Honorable Robert Lowe, by the Act introduced by him so far back as the year 1843, nearly twenty years ago, abolishing imprisonment for debt? I hardly think the public can be aware that one of the chief objects of this proposed new Insolvent Act is thus to invade the liberty of the subject. Those amongst us who recollect the ovations paid to Mr. Lowe on his accomplishing the task of blotting out from our statute book this law of the dark ages (imprisonment for debt), cannot but be disgusted at the presumption of a man who has not been twelve months in the colony, attempting to undo the good work of this great patriot. I am not surprised that no demonstration has been made by the public to mark their sense of this atrocious attempt to invade our liberties, and to revive the practices of barbarous times, because Mr. Lowe's Act is proposed to be repealed in such an insidious manner that the public generally are not in a position to know that such is one of the objects of Mr. Macfarland's Act. Mr. M.'s proposed Act does not in so many words say that the Act for abolishing imprisonment for debt shall be repealed, but it proposes to repeal the Act by reference to a schedule, in which, under the head of "Acts and parts of Acts repealed," the entire Act "7 Vic. No. 19" (Mr. Lowe's Act abolishing imprisonment for debt) is to be repealed. Now the bulk of the public, by this mode of repealing the Act, have not been aware of the alteration proposed; if they had known of it, I have no doubt that the ears of the people, "from Dan to Beersheba," would have tingled, and they would have strongly expressed their indignation at the attempt of this new comer upon our liberties. It will be seen that the new Act proposes that notwithstanding a party may sequestrate and give up all his property to his creditors, he may still be imprisoned for his debts, and detained in gaol for his life unless Mr. Macfarland may otherwise order. Are the public aware that this monstrous provision is contained in, and forms the basis of the superstructure of the proposed new Insolvent Act. I sincerely trust that the members of the Legislative Council and Legislative Assembly will look well to this matter. Surely this is a nice measure to be brought in by the "People's Ministry."

"CAN YOU NOT HELP US, GIRLS, LIKE YOUR SISTERS?"

LIKE the shrieks that arise from the red field of slaughter,
Heart-rending and piercing, comes misery's wail;
Like the drowning man's scream ere he sinks 'neath the water,
The cry of distress floats along on the gale.

'Tis from Manchester's streets, from its lanes, and its alleys,
Where the brave rank and file of the Battle of Life,
Who pass through their days like the slaves in the galleys,
Are struggling with death in a terrible strife.

O God, can it be in the midst of a nation
That they sink like the shipwreck'd beneath the dark waves:
Like our Desert Explorers, struck down by starvation,
Unhonour'd, unmourn'd, and unwept in their graves!

They fall not in battle, with bloody steel carving
A name and remembrance on History's scroll,
But, wasted with hunger and want, they are starving,
While Death Bells are pealing a pitiless toll.

'Tis the blast of the Desert! among them 'tis blowing,
And low bend their heads in the horror-struck gloom;
'Tis the breath of the Plague! see, among them 'tis sowing,
The seeds whose dark harvest is reap'd in the tomb.

But the children of England can stand without blenching,
Like the soldiers of Rome, in the presence of Death;
Though slowly their spirit dire famine is quenching,
That spirit departs, but with life and with breath.

O, hark to the echoes of anguish and sorrow!
Hark to the child with its famishing cry!
Despair for to-day, and no Hope for to-morrow,
Unhelped and scarce pitied, they have but to die!

And hark, from the halls of dark misery pealing,
That cry of a girl on her death-pallet laid,—
"Can you not help us? O men without feeling!
Girls, like your sisters, we ask for your aid!"

Yes, brothers we are, though your homes be but lowly;
Brothers we are, by Humanity's tie;
And bound in relationship, sacred and holy,
Of grief and of sorrow, the tear and the sigh!

Yes, sisters we hear, though the billows of ocean,
Roll darkly between us, we hear your sad cry!
Not a heart beats among us but thrills with emotion;
And Pity's sweet angel looks forth from each eye!

In the name of our sisters, that name we all cherish,
We haste with our aid, though 'tis tardy and late;
From our loved land of plenty, we'll never see perish
Girls like our sisters: O God, what a fate!

ARALUEN DIGGINGS.—The Braidwood Observer says: —"Sanguine hopes are entertained that the lead will shortly be discovered on Crown Flat, and experienced diggers entertain the opinion that the plains may be payably worked on the co-operative principle. It is the prevailing opinion, however, that no lead exists upon the plains—that the gold lies in scattered patches. Some of the holders of claims below Crown Flat are doing well, and Kennedy's in particular. Some fresh ground has been opened near Mr Burke's new house (the Horse and Jockey) Upper Araluen; indeed, one engine is in full work, and another is about being erected there. Great activity prevails throughout the Valley. Trade is generally improved; in fact, some of the storekeepers complain of having too much to do. Sickness is still very prevalent, many fatal cases of diphtheria daily occurring, and it has been computed, although the supposition is opposed to the returns of the District Registrar, which shews a total of only forty-five deaths for the whole district during the past quarter, that one-twelfth of the population, viz., 100, have succumbed to this and other maladies in a corresponding period. Should the computation prove anything like the figure, a remarkable discrepancy, which we cannot in any way account for prevails between such a state of facts and the actual returns. In connection, however, with the yield of the Araluen diggings, which on all hands is admitted to attain a tolerable average, it is pleasing to notice the extensive improvements which have taken place. Upon those portions of the Valley which now come under the category of improved Crown lands, numerous neat and comfortable homesteads have been erected, substantial fences have been put up, and everything betokens a desire on the part of the population to make a permanent settlement in the locality, as there is a very general manifestation of a determination to avail themselves of the liberally conceived and well defined land regulations established by Mr. Robertson's Act. The reports from Major's Creek, as may naturally be anticipated from the scarcity of rain are not so satisfactory as could be wished. From Little River, Jembaicumbene, Bell's Paddock, and other localities, we hear of no great finds, but various degrees of payable success are reported.

THE PRINCE CONSORT'S DEATH: HOW THE TIDINGS WERE RECEIVED IN N.S.W.
(From the Edinburgh Scotsman, May, 7.)

To those who have the greatest cause to mourn his departure there is a bitter as well as a balm in the warm expressions of sorrow with which comparative strangers receive the tidings of the death of a widely-respected man. It is soothing to find that the deceased was so respected, but at the same time the bereaved are forcibly reminded of the irreparable nature of their loss. Very proud, very sad, were British hearts when, at a time in which war between the two nations seemed an imminent certainty, our Transatlantic kinsmen stifled for the moment their anti-British animosity in order to send us generous assurances of sincere sympathy in the grief which the death of the Prince Consort had occasioned in the old country. The anxious haste the Emperor of the French made to flash across the channel an assurance of his sympathy will not soon be forgotten in Great Britain. The Crown-Prince of Prussia, who previously had been merely interesting to us as the husband of our Princess Royal, has won a personal place in British regard by speaking at the Royal Academy banquet of "the dear Prince, whom he had been proud to call his father-in-law." Similarly solacing and yet saddening expressions of literal compassion for our loss have been afforded by every foreign Power worth mentioning. Thoroughly have the British colonies shared the mother-country's sorrow. Nowhere has that participation been more strikingly manifested than in the far-off Australian colonies. Of this the last Australian mail furnishes abundant proof. We may take the reception of the mournful intelligence of Prince Albert's death in the oldest colony of the group as a representative of that with which it met in all.

The Sydney Morning Herald, in a powerfully, because simply pathetic, leading article, is a worthy exponent of the manly grief the melancholy tidings caused in New South Wales. Although, this article remarks, the sad news reached Australia long after it was known in the other parts of the British Empire, in no portion of that Empire did it cause a deeper distress. "Death could have found no victim save one that the Australian world would have been less willing to resign." "The Queen and Prince Albert" had long been household words in Australia. Many a colonist's last personal recollection of royalty had been a memory of the fair young maidenbrow which, just as he was about to sail to the remotest portion of her dominion, received its splendid crown. Such persons had heard of the progress of the royal maiden—in their eyes ever to be regarded with a fatherly feeling of protection as well as a subject's loyalty—to the states of wife and mother with intensest interest. All classes of colonists had rejoiced at the royal matron's matrimonial bliss, at the daily broadening blossom of "The white flower of a blameless life,

Before a thousand peering littlenesses,
In that fierce light which beats upon a throne,
And blackens every blot."

In Australia, as in Britain, "the poor Queen!" was the first cry uttered by every one who heard of her noble consort's death. The widowed wife, the fatherless children, were commiserated, but then came again, as in Britain, a crushing sense of the nation's loss. The article we have briefly summarised concludes with an intimation that a statue of the Prince-Consort is to be erected in Sydney, the expense to be defrayed by small subscriptions, in order that the general wish to contribute may be gratified.

There is no hyperbole in the poet's reference to

"Her—over all whose realms to their last isle,
Commingled with the gloom of imminent war,
The shadow of his loss moved like eclipse,
Darkening the world."

On the 27th of February it was known in Sydney that Prince Albert was dead. The flags of the forts and of the men-of-war in harbour were instantly lowered. In the evening the Governor issued an extraordinary Gazette officially announcing the doleful news, and appointing the following Sunday as a day of mourning. Next day at an early hour one of the men-of-war began to fire minute guns. Every vessel in port, British or foreign, hoisted its flag half-mast high. On Government House and on Fort Macquarie—at the foot of its wooded grounds—the Royal Standard also drooped half-past. At noon a fort, and at sundown a man-of-war, fired minute guns. On the Sunday, crowds of the citizens were clad in black. Most of the city pulpits were similarly draped, and at some of the churches throughout the day the bells rang muffled peals. Sermons appropriate to the occasion were preached by Church of England, Wesleyan, Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist, Primitive Methodist, and Unitarian ministers. The Roman Catholic Archbishop, postponing out of respect to the deceased Prince a meeting which had been called for the completion of the Catholic Cathedral, spoke with affectionate loyalty of her Majesty and the royal partner of whom she had been deprived. St. Patrick's Day was observed with unwonted quietness by the Hibernian citizens, and the customary banquet was not given. The Jews set apart the 8th March for special services in memory of the Prince. At one of these, peace for his soul was fervently supplicated, just as it was recently in the presence of the Prince of Wales at Jerusalem, and prayers were also chanted for all the royal family. Addresses of condolence have been forwarded to her Majesty from several public bodies in New South Wales, and many more, doubtless, will arrive by the next mail. On Sunday, the 9th March, every spot which commanded a view of Farm Cove, the tranquil bay in front of the beautiful Botanic Gardens of Sydney, which is the anchorage set apart for men-of-war, was thronged with citizens, who had come to witness the last public manifestation in Sydney of mourning for the "noble father of our kings to be"—the firing of broadsides by H. M. ships Pelorus, Harrier, and Miranda. "At the last broadside, the top-gallant yards of each ship were sent down, and all flags on board were simultaneously struck." That thunder, those white clouds spreading from Fort Macquarie to "Lady Macquarie's Chair"—those symbols of the cessation of conflict—will long be remembered by those who, proud to live beneath the protection of the greatest naval Power that ever was, and, most probably, ever will be, assembled to assist at the funeral rites of the

"Far-sighted summoner of war and waste
To fruitful strifes and rivalries of peace."

ARCHBISHOP POLDING.—His Grace Archbishop Polding is now on a visitation tour in the Southern and South-western districts. Having travelled in his carriage to Albury, accompanied by the Rev. Father Athy, he there administered confirmation on Sunday the 27th June; on the 29th he performed similar duties at Mr. Purtell's, Ten Mile Creek; on Tuesday last he held service at Mundarlow; on Friday last at Adelong, at which place he also laid the first stone of the new chapel, and consecrated the Catholic portion of the cemetery. On the afternoon of the same day he arrived in Tumut, escorted by a numerous cavalcade who had gone out to meet him. On Sunday morning last he administered the sacrament of confirmation to about fifty of his congregation, and in the afternoon he visited the cemetery, and there performed certain Catholic rites. He took his departure from Tumut yesterday for Gundagai, at which place he contemplated administering confirmation the same day. On Sunday next he purposes holding divine service at Yass, after which he will return to the metropolis. The heavy state of the roads compels his Grace to postpone his visit to the Lambing Flat and Lachlan diggings until the summer months.—Wynyard Times.

STRIKE AT THE ARALUEN.—We regret to state that since the penning of our mining review, we are in receipt of positive information that the apprehended strike at the Araluen has taken place, and that it is a general one. Notwithstanding that we are fully alive to the pernicious principles of these strikes, we feel compelled to state that in the present instance the men have some reason to complain of the attempted reduction of the wages from £3 10s. to £3 per week. There has been no reduction in the prices of the necessaries of life to compensate for the loss which by ten shillings deducted from his earnings a working man must sustain, and though the cause assigned for the reduction is that the claims are not paying, this assertion is chiefly confined to those on the plains.—Braidwood Observer.

FORAGE AT LAMBING FLAT is dear out of all reason as compared with the prices of hay and corn at the Lachlan. Here hay is fetching £20 to £22 per ton; oats from 12s. to 13s.; and corn, from 14s. to 15s. per bushel. At the Lachlan hay is plentiful, and difficult of sale at £15 per ton, and corn and oats, at from 8s. to 9s. per bushel.—Burrangong Courier.

FATAL ACCIDENT AND LOSS OF TWO LIVES.—On Friday, the 11th instant, a sad accident occurred in Turf-street, Grafton, through the bolting of a horse with cart, in which was a Mrs. Holloway and four children, the upsetting of which inflicted such injuries on Mrs. Holloway and her eldest son—a lad about ten years of age—that the latter was picked up dead, and the mother only survived about ten minutes after the melancholy event. It appears that no party actually witnessed the accident. The horse was one lent to Mrs. Holloway to bring one of her children into Grafton for medical treatment, by Mr. Barnes, of Coval, the employer of the husband of the deceased woman. —Richmond Examiner.

STICKING-UP.—Intelligence has reached the authorities that a few days since a party of five men, armed with double-barrelled guns and revolvers, and having their horses in the bush, stuck up and robbed about twenty persons within half a mile of the military camp at Burrangong. As each unlucky traveller came up he was stopped and overhauled, and then tied to his predecessor in misfortune. Fortunately, however, some £3 was all that the robbers netted. They are supposed to belong to the gang that attacked Sir F. Pottinger.—Goulburn Herald.

Business during the week has been dull, and there has been but little disposition on the part of the trade to operate, their stocks being generally for the present sufficiently large. The demand for the diggings has also lulled; but as accounts are still satisfactory it will, no doubt, shortly revive again. The following is the latest report of the state of our markets.

FLOUR.—The market remains firm, and there is a confident feeling on the part of holders that prices are likely to rule higher. First Adelaide brands are quoted at £15 to £16 per ton. The millers' quotations are . The Chrishna is at present the only vessel loading at Adelaide for Sydney. Wheat is worth 6s. 9d. and very little on hand.

LIQUIDS.—Ale, in bulk, is firmer, and prices have slightly advanced. Bass's is quoted at £8 5s. to £8 10s. Allsop's £8. Bottled ale and porter are in rather better demand, but prices remain about the same as last week. Brandy is steady but a limited demand; Martell's is quoted at 12s. 9d. to 13s. Hennessey's 12s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. Common case brandy is more inquired for at improved rates. Rum is very dull; 30 o-p. is quoted at 3s. 9d. to 3s. 10d. In whisky there is no alteration, Geneva is a little firmer, and large sales of key brand have been made at 14s. 3d. to 14s. 6d. Wines are rather dull, but there have been no sales of any importance this week, and prices are nominally the same.

TEAS.—The market has been firm in consequence of the high prices ruling in China. Two cargoes, however, have lately arrived via Melbourne, but they have not yet been brought into the market. It is believed they must have the effect of causing present prices to decline.

SUGARS are very dull and prices have given way fully £2 to £3 per ton. At auction only a few small parcels were with difficulty sold, and the bulk of the quantity offered was withdrawn. The quotations, which are almost nominal, are as follows:—Loaf, £58; Mauritius white crystals, £40 to £41; yellow, £35 to £36; grey, £32 to £34 10s.

COFFEE is firm, and prices are about ½d. per lb. highe; Manila is quoted at 9d. to 9½d. per lb. in bond; Plantation, 12½d. to 13d.

RICE is in fair demand, and the late advance has been fully maintained. Patna is quoted at £25 per ton; Java, £22 to £23 per ton.

SALT is steady, and prices are unaltered. Liverpool, £3 5s. to £4 10s. per ton.

OILMEN'S STORES are in fair demand, and most articles under this heading command full rates.

BAGS.—Three-bushel bags are quoted at 13s. to 13s. 6d. Woolpacks are in demand, at 4s. 9d.

METALS.—Galvanized iron is in good demand. In other metals there is little doing, and prices are without alteration.

KEROSENE OIL is rather dull of sale, and has receded about 6d. per gallon.

As our monthly summary will be published on Monday next, we omit the circulars of the share and produce brokers, usually published in our Saturday's issues.

The following sales are reported:—

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench have sold, during the week, in addition to the sales already reported, 127 acres of land, Ousedale Estate, near Appin, for £365, and 166 acres on the same estate for £187; 8 allotments on the Kingston Estate, Newtown, 22s 6d per foot; an allotment of land, corner of Yurong and Stanley streets, 48 feet frontage, £384; land and premises at the corner of Queen and Waterloo streets, Chippendale, for £450.

Messrs. Durham and Irwin held their usual weekly produce sale this day. Wool: The lots offered consisted of odd lots of fellmongers wools, which were taken at current rates. Sheepskins are in fair demand; over 4500 were disposed of at from 1d to 7d; for full-woolled pelts at 3¼d per lb. Tallow: There is a better desire to purchase even at a slight advance on last week's rates; 190 casks were disposed of thus,—shipping parcels of beef at from £35 2s 6d to £35 7s 6d; mutton, at £38 5s; station, at from £33 to £36 per ton. Hides: 4375 were disposed of thus, viz.: 75 on the Circular Quay, yesterday (the 17th), at 12s 6d, and 3500 in their stores, of which twelve prime parcels realised the following rates:—119 at 13s, 89 at 12s 3d, 161 at 11s 9d, 47 at 12s 6d, 303 at 12s 6d, 61 at 12s 6d, 34 at 11s 9d, 112 at 12s, 100 at 12s 6d, 209 at 12s 9d, 39 at 12s 9d per hide. Prices ranged thus:—First heavy, 11s 9d to 13s; medium, 8s 9d to 11s 3d; inferior, 2s to 7s 9d each.

Messrs. W. Dean and Co.'s sale of produce to-day comprised 9 bales wool. 1 lot of 7 bales skin wool was placed at 14d. A parcel of sheepskins was sold at 5¼d. 10 casks Newington beef tallow was placed at £35 7s 6d; 5 casks mutton ditto at £37 2s 6d. 100 hides were sold at 9s, and 299 Newington hides at 12s 6d.

Messrs. W. Dean and Co. report that their sales during the week have been without animation, and very limited in extent. Sugar shows a heavy decline, and prices are quite nominal. Sales of cargoes made by them some few weeks ago would hardly cover the prices sold at, which may be taken as a decline of fully £3 to £5 per ton. The unsettled arrangements of the Sugar Company's Bill may have much to do with this great dulness and reduction in price, as no person can understand the operations of the Company. Sugars of all classes are abundant in the colony, but the Company's prices will allow of no margin for profit, though they cannot supply the demand, and refuse to execute orders within any given period. The stock in the colony can be little over general consumption for station or ration sugars; fine counters are not so plentiful, and as demand springs up these will be placed without so heavy a loss as low kinds. Teas.—Market quiet, though stocks are low, and very few fine teas for sale. The least speculation would cause an advance of fully 20s to 30s per chest. Coffee and rice are very firm, and the stocks being very light, and in the hands of only two houses in Sydney, rates must advance. Cigars.—There is a lull, and sales can only be made with difficulty at 65s per M. They must advance as they cannot be laid down under 175s for Manila at last rates. Flour and Wheat.—We have placed large parcels during the week at advanced rates. The market is very firm, and stocks held by the dealers very light.

On Tuesday, Messrs. W. Dean and Co. held an important sale of Crown Lands, which was fully reported in our Wednesday's issue. Immediately upon the conclusion of the Government sale, Mr. Inglis's estate, Petersham (subdivided into allotments), was offered. This property attracted some attention, and the competition was spirited. The whole of section 1, Nos. 1-11 of section 2, Nos. 1-17 and lots 1 and 10 of section 3, were sold at prices ranging from £22 to £30 per acre. Mr. Page's tannery (Bathurst) was withdrawn at £1500.

Messrs. L. E. Threlkeld and Co. held this day a large sale of groceries and oilmen's stores. Several parcels of Java and Mauritius sugars were placed at rates which showed considerable dulness in the market, and an indisposition on the part of the trade to buy. Invoices of Hill and Ledger's goods were placed at fair market rates, pint pickles bringing 9s 6d, bottled fruits 10s 7d, table vinegars 9s, half-pint salad oils 9s 7d, ditto pints 13s 7d, assorted jams 10s 7d, new Patras currants 4¼d, Carolina rice 26s. In the afternoon the same firm sold on Campbell's Wharf the cargo of Hobart Town produce ex Alarm at the following rates:—Shingles (inferior), 18s 3d; 5-feet palings, 10s 6d; 6-feet ditto, 15s 9d; battens, 10s 9d; timber, 10s 6d.

Mr. Forbes has to report the sale of Murrumbidgery, New Geary, Woorooboomie, in the district of Bligh; Little River and Wetherwha in the district of Wellington, with the following stock, say, 15,000 sheep at 20s, 2000 at 12s per head; 750 cattle at 50s each; and 800 acres of purchased land at £1 1s 6d per acre. The brands of the Murrumbidgery station of unbroken horses and 10 stock horses, for £500; stores at cost price, carriage added. Terms, cash, as per contract. This sale will amount to over £20,000. In addition to the above he has sold 5050 ewes on the Murrumbidgee River, at an average of nearly 12s per head for cash, less the discount.

MAITLAND MARKETS.

FRIDAY, July 18th.—The country trade has been somewhat dull during the week—a circumstance not at all strange at this season of the year—when there is usually little traffic between the town and interior. The receipt of the European mails has not affected our markets to any extent. Brandy and oilmen's stores appear to be, if anything, firmer than for some time past. Colonial tobacco is in much demand, in consequence of the high and increasing rates ruling for the article. Considerable quantities are being prepared at the manufactory in Maitland and at the Paterson, for transmission to Sydney and elsewhere.

Teas.—Congous are quoted at £9 per chest for the best brands; second quality, £8 to £8 5s.

Sugars.—Company's are quoted at £46 to £49 per ton; snowdrops £55 per ton; good ration £36 to £37 per ton.

English Ale.—Bass' No. 3, £9 per hogshead. Porter in draught scarce.

Brandy.—Martell's, scarce, at 25s per gallon; pale brandy, of the best, brands, is scarce, and prices range from 52s to 75s per case.

Liverpool and fine salts are quoted at £6 to £6 10s per ton; rock salt, £8 per ton.

[THOMAS CADELL.]

Stations.—Really good sheep stations are in demand.

Fat Cattle.—Prime, improving in demand and value.

Fat Sheep.—Good wethers would realise high rates.

Store Cattle.—Dull of sale.

Store Sheep.—Ewes and store wethers continue in demand. I have placed several lots. 800 aged ewes at 9s, in lamb; about 100 at 9s 6d; and a smaller lot at 7s.

Tallow and hides in fair demand.

[DODDS AND CO.]

FAT CATTLE.—The trade are disposed to buy more freely cattle of a good description, for which they are willing to give a fair price. Several lots of cattle intended for Maitland have gone on to Sydney, consequently making this market easier. Boiling and inferior cattle are plentiful enough; they sell well, there being several fresh buyers.

Fat Sheep.—A flock of wethers was in and sold at 13s. 6d. to 14s. 2d. each, and a flock of middling quality ewes which passed off at an average of 8s. 4d.

Working bullocks are in demand, and worth from £10 to £12 per pair.

Horses, few in the market; a fresh lot from the country would sell well, if strong and in condition.

July 18.

LAW.

COURT OF VICE ADMIRALTY.

THURSDAY.

BEFORE His Honor S. F. Milford, Esq., Judge Commissary.

BIGGLE AND OTHERS V. THE SHIP QUEEN OF ENGLAND.

This was a suit for salvage, by the owners and masters of the steamers Lowestoffe and Rapid. The claim was for alleged services, by these steamers and their crews, in rescuing the ship Queen of England from wreck at Newcastle. The vessel has been sold by the Marshal of the Court, and the proceeds of such sale (£2500) had been paid into Court. The whole of this amount was claimed by the plaintiffs. The respondents resisted such claim as being, under all the circumstances of the case, exorbitant. At this stage of the case, all that was done was to take evidence viva voce. This occupied all day, without being concluded. It will be resumed to-day at ten a.m.

Sir William Manning, Q.C., and Mr. Milford appeared for the claimants; and Mr. Martin, Q.C., and Mr. Gordon, for the respondents (the insurers of the ship).

GERRARD V. GERRARD.

This was a new trial of a Supreme Court issue in an action brought for the amount of a washing bill. The case was partly heard on Thursday, was resumed at eleven o'clock, and after occupying the remainder of the day, again resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, but for £143 only, she having withdrawn that portion of the claim which accrued in her husband's lifetime. Mr. Windeyer for plaintiff, Mr. Butler for defendant.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Three persons taken into custody for drunkenness were discharged. John Doran, for having wilfully and obscenely exposed himself in Hyde Park, was sentenced to be imprisoned one month; and Ann Goodwin, for indecent behaviour in George-street, was sentenced to be imprisoned one month.

John Gilmore appeared on summons to answer the information of James B. Winship, manager, &c., of the Australian Agricultural Company, for having unlawfully, and without lawful excuse, on the 7th July, absented himself from the hired service of the Company at Newcastle. The Bench found defendant guilty, and sentenced him to pay a penalty of 40s., or to be imprisoned seven days. The other cases on the summons sheet were either dismissed or postponed.

HINTS TO BANKERS.—The Musclebrook correspondent of the Singleton Times writes:—Extensive purchasers of stock here are very anxious to have this proposal reduced to positive reality. All stock is nominally sold for cash, but when delivered at Musclebrook the payment is generally made in orders on Maitland and Sydney, on which orders there is, of course, a commission. When a sale has been effected up country, for delivery at Musclebrook, and on the arrival of the stock the market is found to be more advantageous than had been expected, the seller very often avails himself of the plea non-payment in cash, and repudiates the sale. Purchasers thereby lose the advantage of a rise in the market which they might secure by having cash credit at a branch bank in Musclebrook. There are many further inducements. We may instance the following. Cash sales in the different stores here amount to about fifty thousand (£50,000) per annum. There are seven inns or public-houses in the township, doing business to a very large amount. Then, again, the most of the business generally transacted is in the form of cheques, the most of which would tend to support a local bank. Let it be remembered that these figures represent Musclebrook alone, and that the nearest branch bank is that of Singleton, thirty miles distant, where we believe there is no account kept by any resident in this district. A very considerable amount of business might be expected from Scone, as well as from the many opulent squatters in the country surrounding. Large employers of labour have already expressed a decided wish for the opening of a bank here. The following estimate of the amount of business transacted in Musclebrook may be relied on as an under calculation:—Stock, £100,000; stores £40,000; publicans, £25,000; employers of labour, £20,000: total, £185,000—in so many words, to prevent all mistakes, one hundred and eighty-five thousand pounds. And this in addition to business from Scone, and from Cassilis, Merriwa, Denman, &c. Now, supposing on an average that one-third only of this amount should be received by the local bank in cheques on other banks, at the usual commission of one-half per cent., from this source alone would be derived an income of nine thousand pounds (£9000). Consider, too, the discount on bills and cash credits, together with the very great advantage that a local bank would have by securing for itself business now done by banks at a distance, and also the opportunity for issuing notes.

EXTRAORDINARY BIRTH.—Mrs. Samuel Armond, of Musclebrook, was recently delivered of three living children, as a wag of that township jocosely observes "quite independently of Dr. Thornton." Six pairs of twins have been born in town within the last four years.—Singleton Times.

STATE-AID TO RELIGION.

To W. M. C.

(By favour of the Herald)

SIR,—A few months since the Bishop of Sydney visited the Southern districts of this colony, and in a certain town in his route I had the gratification of hearing his lordship preach. The sermon contained much common sense, much sound counsel, much indifferent logic, much exceptionable exegesis.—but on the whole was a fair specimen of that style of preaching which is affected by Low Church clergy. The right reverend preacher passed in review the multitudinous corruptions which had fastened on Christianity from the first century to the present age. He expatiated with almost eloquence, spiced rather strongly with the odium theologicum, on the subtle, captivating, insidious influence of the Church of Rome. Of all the heresies which had distorted Gospel truth, and seduced mankind away from the pure religion of Christ to follow human inventions; of all the false systems of doctrine which had been devised by the craft and subtilty of the Devil to render of none effect the cross of Christ, and to lead men to worship the creature more than the Creator, there was not one to be compared with the Church of Rome—it was the great abomination, it was the very embodiment of Antichrist. Such was the tenor of the Bishop's remark. I have been a good many years in the bush, and am fast forgetting my Greek; but I remember that anti, in composition, means "opposite," so that he who is an Antichrist is, of course, an enemy to Christ. I pondered this as I heard the worthy Bishop's discourse, and though a good Protestant myself, I could not but recoil from the terrible denunciations thus hurled against whole millions of my fellow-Christians, though of another communion. But I never for a moment doubted that the Bishop believed what he was saying. I had no suspicion of his earnestness; no one could possibly have doubted it who looked into his face, and witnessed how the topic brought out all the fire of his eye, and all the latent energy of his nature. I remembered that the great father, Tertullian, had expressed in glowing terms, his exultation at the prospect of looking upon the agonies of the damned, and of hearing their groans in the lowest abyss of darkness; and I was edified to find that in spite of all the heresies of which we had just heard so much, at least an orthodox horror of heretics had not entirely expired in the Church.

Now it appears that the priests of this system of Antichristianism receive about £9000 a year from the Government of this colony for the purpose of enabling them the better to disseminate their views, or, as the Bishop would put it, the better to ensnare the souls of men. The Bishop and his clergy receive from the same source about £15,000 a year to enable them the better to disseminate the antidote to this system of Antichristianism. Both are supported by the public purse.—the bane and the antidote. We were a few days since made aware by you, Sir, that our Bishop objects to this support of truth and error, that he considers the Church of England wronged in not getting all the £28,000, instead of only a part; but to a simple bushman like me the difficulty is, how on earth the Bishop can take even a single farthing on such terms. If he could step down from his high orthodox position, and be content to view the differences between his own Church, the Church of Rome, and the other endowed denominations, as merely frivolous or unimportant; if, in other words, he could bring himself to look upon the Christian sects as standing on the same footing as the old classical religions, which, as Gibbon tells us, were to the people all equally true, to the philosopher all equally false, and to the magistrate all equally useful—then the Bishop's conduct would be consistent enough. If he must denounce the Roman Catholic Church as Antichristianism, in the name of decency and common courtesy, let him first refuse to receive a shilling from the same public treasury which supports the priests of that false system. If he cannot, or will not, do this, he should hold his peace, and await in decent quiet the sentence which must sooner or later be pronounced by the Nemesis of such an unholy compromise. "Ephraim is joined to idols, let him alone." Suppose some wealthy person were to offer you, Sir, a handsome reward to go forth and declare to the world the political virtues and deserts of Mr. Charles Cowper, the present Premier. Suppose the same wealthy person were, in your presence, to offer a similar reward to another individual to go forth and blacken the political character of the same Mr. Cowper. You are both to go through the colony and preach, the one for, the other against, Mr Cowper. What would you think of such an employer? What would you think of such an employment? If you were looking out for a job, and did not care a brass farthing one way or the other about Mr. Cowper's reputation, you could, of course, take the reward, and consent to advocate whichever side of the question might be proposed to you,—only, of course, you would look upon yourself, and everybody else would soon learn to look upon you, as a mere humbug. But if you sincerely admired and respected Mr. Cowper, and were not so hard up as to be driven to compromise your character for the sake of a few pounds, you would of course act as any gentleman, nay, any honest man whatever, must act in such a case; your self-respect, your fine sense of honour, would be mortified at such a base proposal; you would say, "Your offer, sir, is an insult to my honoured friend Mr. Cowper—an insult to truth itself; I indignantly refuse it." Apply the same principles to the Bishop of Sydney's conduct in receiving a stipend from the same Government that supports a religious system which he holds to be destructive to the souls of men, and I am confident that he must be condemned by every unsophisticated man that knows right from wrong. The people of this colony never will allow the Bishop to have for his own Church the whole sum granted by Schedule C. No sane man would dream of it for a moment. If he is determined not to yield to the voluntary principle, if he receives State-aid at all, it must be in conjunction with what he considers to be Antichrist. What a humiliating position! What a contrast to the noble conduct of those men who, in Scotland a few years ago, left their comfortable manses and their stipends, rather than eat the bread of an unrighteous compromise. I am an Englishman, and not altogether an admirer of Presbyterianism, but I am sure that the system is better calculated than Anglicanism to teach men independence and self-respect. In no country is the minister more revered than in Scotland, nowhere is his moral influence more strongly felt, more cheerfully accorded; but, alas! our Bishop and our clergy are afraid of the laity; the Bishop has openly expressed his distrust of our generosity and our right feeling. Let this state of things go on, and we shall soon become what the Bishop has painted us—though, when the struggle is over, I am confident that the usefulness and purity of our English Church will be displayed in New South Wales in brighter colours than in England.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

RATIO.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—Just one word with your correspondent "Anglicanus," and then I have no objection that he should "retire into" his "accustomed obscurity."

I never mentioned the clergymen of St. James' in my speech the other night that has so disturbed him; I never thought of those two estimable gentlemen at the time. I spoke of the authorities of the two leading Churches of this colony. The editors of Freeman's Journal understood the reference thoroughly (see that journal of last Saturday). If "Anglicanus" did not so understand my meaning, then his "want of clear-headedness" is greater than my own.

Let him and his co-agitators be wise in time. They cannot resist the force of public opinion. If they succeed in preventing the passing of the bill now before Parliament, their triumph will be very short-lived. It is just possible they may illustrate the old proverb—"Quem Deus vult perdere, prius dementat."

Perhaps Mr. Martin will be good enough to translate that for me, seeing that I and my order generally are wanting in that "higher educational and intellectual stamp" which the country requires.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

SAMUEL IRONSIDE.

Newtown, 18th July.

To the Editor of the Herald.

SIR,—If Colonel Hamilton would issue an order, directing how the men intended to compete at Randwick are to be chosen, it would be very satisfactory to the Volunteers, but it would be more so to the public, who subscribe to find the prizes. We would then be certain that none of the men whose place ought to be among the first-class were to be found in the second, and that there was fair play and no favour. The gallant Colonel would thus confer another favour on us, as well as the Volunteers.

Yours,

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

ACCIDENTS TO MINES.—The following paragraph in reference to a pit shaft accident, will be of interest in view of the bill in reference to coal mines which is now before the Legislative Council:—"On March 29th, an accident happened in the pit shaft of Seaham Colliery, in the county of Durham, of precisely the same character as that which occurred in Hartley pit, and the loss of life might have been double that of Hartley, had there not have been a door of escape such as was suggested at the period of the Hartley pit accident. About half-past eleven in the forenoon, while between 300 and 400 men and boys were employed down in the mine, the cage coming up the shaft got out of the 'skeets,' or guides which serve to keep it in position while going upward or downward, and came into violent collision with the cage that was descending at the same moment. The shock of the collision drove the loosened cage forcibly against the brattice-work which divides the shaft (which is a single one), and about ten fathoms of it was carried away. Part of the timber went down the shaft, and the remainder fell crosswise, blocking up the shaft pretty much in the same manner as at Hartley, but not to the like extent. Unlike Hartley, however, a way of escape had been provided for the miners in case of an accident of this character. A connecting road had been made into Seaton Colliery, and in a very short time every soul was in safety on the bank. The Seaham pit-shaft is walled throughout with smoothly-finished masonry, except where it passes through a stratum of solid rock, and therefore no heavy stone or rubbish has fallen to complete the choking up of the shaft as at Hartley."

PEAK DOWNS GOLD.—Another parcel of gold has come in from Peak Downs during the week. The bearer is a gold-buyer of considerable experience, and we learn from him that about thirty ounces of gold have been paid to one of the squatters on the Downs for rations, and that the diggers (fourteen in number) still hold about forty ounces. Three drays have started from Yaamba with a view to a store being opened on the Nelson Diggings. Our informant states that there is also a prospect of a gold-field being opened up ear Yaamba. Three men have been out prospecting in a creek fifteen miles from the township, and as the result of three weeks' work they have returned with 4½ ounces of the precious metal.

SIR BULWER LYTTON'S EARLY FICTIONS.

(By an English Critic)

To merely collect into a volume the axioms and maxims from the works of Bulwer would be a most interesting task, and it would form a rich volume of lessons on all sides of human nature. In none of our novelists have we any wealth at all approaching to this. These writings abound with epigrammatic sentences reminding us of Voltaire and of Rochefoucault. They sparkle like crystals; they shoot forth dark and keen darts of light, or fire of satire, or observation remarkable and pertinent as the sayings of strong thinkers, or the lines of great poets. It is noticeable that they abound more in the earlier works; there is a spiteful feline brilliancy about many of these sayings,—not unlike the blue spark we think we extract from the cat when we stroke her backwards in the ampler room. This is a characteristic of these men, and the minds that have observed the world without learning the great lessons of love. Now, much of that pertinent smartness which we admire derives all its force from petulance and spite—from hate and spleen; for what is satire, but imagination sharpened on the hone of hate or scorn? All the first works of Bulwer represent the phase of moral history in which the world is despised. At any rate, this is the effect the artist has produced. Every one of them is the insight of scorn into the world's hollow heart, and therefore they all abound with the smart sayings of philosophic wit. Yet we have no right to identify the writer with these characters, although he must have seen them and lived through them. Wit may exist in the mind in aesthetic proportions, not vicious deformities. It may be the acid in the cup of life, without poisoning the whole cup.

In the early volumes of our writer we have far more wit than humour; indeed, the humour seldom appears at all. There is a sharp, pungent querulousness when speaking of the world and the world's ways, exhibiting more painfully the sore heart and the unsatisfied spirit—the fox gnawing beneath the Spartan cloak. Wit arises in us from our seeing things in angles. Wit is the wintry frost—the sharp needle-point stinging the skin. Humour is the water of life, genial and warm in the summer sunshine. They are both the essence of life; but the one beneath the frost, the other beneath the sunbeam.

The language of Wit is, "I laugh and I despise;" the language of Humour is, "I laugh, but I love." Hence we find truly enough that Wit is more the property of bad men, as Humour is the mental property of good men. Wit draws keen, swift distinctions; Humour modifies, and shades, and softens character. Humour is the language of feeling; Wit is the result of spiteful thought. "The Caxtons" of our author is a work of genuine humour. But in most of our author's other works Wit is predominant. Mental evolvement rather than moral teaching. These writings strike us as those of one who would love men if he could trust them, but the first thought to all men is to suspect them. That is what the world does for us. And he has certainly drawn to the very life a gallery of very bad men, repeating that portrait, however, in many instances. Thus Lord Mauleverer, in "Paul Clifford," is just the same person as Lord Lilburn, in "Night and Morning," or Lord Vargrave, in "Ernest Maltravers," and Corporal Bunting, in "Eugene Aram;" and certainly one of the most perfectly rich and natural of all our author's paintings is only a Lilburn or a Mauleverer wanting their rank or opportunity for vice. Bulwer, in his early writings, seemed to be related to the family of humanity rather by the brain than the heart. His heart is large and intense. And we see occasionally, nay, frequently, how rich his affections are which mostly slumber there; but it is the brain that has been most taxed and laborious. The brain is his most restless and fervid force. There is a sharp intellectualism over all his writings. We scarcely know another writer who has eaten so much of the forbidden fruit. And you cannot read without yourself plucking too of the tree of knowlege of good and evil. He has trodden restlessly and gloomily through the regions of dark knowledge and occult ideas. We do not say there is not much moral surgery in these writings, but the writer comes immediately to the surgery from the dissecting-room. Moral morbidity frequently meets us, and then we have the wit—the wit of the ghastly old scarecrow, Lord Mauleverer, his scheming old brain wigged, and his leathern jaws rouged, and from his nightcap pleasantly laying plans for the seduction or marriage of innocence. His wit-like Lilburns—they disgust us; they are like the putrid exalations of the blue vampyre light which go creeping about over graves and charnels.

Thus the reader will find, in the course of the work, abundance of those wise aphorisms of life, intuition, and experience, with which all, and especially the latest works of the writer, abound. Many of them may be regarded as the proverbialism of the supernatural. We will venture to quote a page of these brilliant and rememberable words:—

Conscience.—"The prime element of a sound understanding is conscience itself."

Prayer.—"Of all general laws, I know of none more general than the impulse which bids men pray,—all the phenomena of nature we can conceive, however startling and inexperienced, do not make the brute pray; but there is not a trouble that can happen to man but his impulse is to pray,—always provided, indeed, that he is not a philosopher."

Woman.—"Between the outward and the inward woman, there is ever a third woman—such as the whole human being appears to the world—always mantled, sometimes masked."

Soul and Conscience.—"There is no conscience where soul is wanting."

A Lost Soul.—"When the mortal deliberately allies himself to the spirits of evil, he surrenders the citadel of his being to the guard of his enemies. The intellect, armed by the passions, has beseiged and oppressed the soul; but the soul has never ceased to repine and to repent."

Modern Spiritualism.—"I feel a fear lest in the absorbing interest of researches which tend to increase to a marvellous degree the power of man over all matters, animate or inanimate, I may have blunted my own moral perceptions, and that there may be much in the knowledge which I sought and acquired from the pure desire of investigating hidden truths, that could be more abused to purposes of tremendous evil than be likely to conduce to benignant good."

The Facts of Forbidden Knowledge.—"They are the keys to masked doors in the ramparts of nature, which no mortal can pass through without rousing dread sentries never seen on this side of her wall."

Scientific Errors.—"The mistake we make in some science we have specially cultivated is often only to be seen by the light of a separate science as specially cultivated by another."

Contemplation.—"The soul has need of pauses of repose—intervals of escape, not only from the flesh, but even from the mind. The soul has a long road to travel—from time to eternity. It demands its halting hours of contemplation."

Slander.—"The adder that dwells in cities—Slander."

The Teaching of Nature.—"It is with some characters as with the subtler and more ethereal order of poets. To appreciate them, we must suspend the course of artificial life. In the city we call them dreamers; on the mountain top we find them interpreters."

Spirits.—"The first blockhead we meet in our walk to our grocer's can tell us more than the ghost tells us; the poorest envy we ever aroused hurts us more than the demon."

The Credulity of Sceptics.—"'The human mind,' said Luther, 'is like a drunkard on horseback; prop it on one side, and its falls on the other.' So the man who is much too enlightened to believe in a peasant's religion, is always sure to set up inane superstition of his own."

It would be very easy to lengthen by many pages these short happy utterances. They are abundantly strewn along the pages of the work.

PAINS OF EARLY RISING.—It is most depressing and miserable work, getting up at candlelight. It is impossible to shave comfortably; it is impossible to find anything you want. "Sleep," says Sancho Panza, "covers a man all over like a mantle of comfort; but rising before daylight envelopes the entire being in perfect misery." An indescribable vacuity makes itself felt in the epigastric regions, and a leaden heaviness weighs upon heart and spirits. It must be a considerable item in the hard lot of domestic servants, to have to get up through all the winter months in the cold, dark house; let us be thankful to them, through whose humble labours and self-denial we find the cheerful fire blazing in the tidy breakfast-parlour when we find our way down stairs. That same apartment looked cheerless enough when the housemaid entered it two hours ago. It is sad, when you are lying in bed of a morning, lazily unconscious of that circling amplitude of comfort, to hear the childly cry of the poor sweep outside; or the tread of the factory hands shivering by in their garments towards the great cotton mill, glaring spectral out of its many windows, but at least with a cosy suggestion of warmth and light. Think of the baker, too, who rose in the dark of midnight, that those hot rolls might appear on your breakfast table; and of the printer, intelligent, active, accurate to a degree that you careless folks who put no points to your letters have little idea of, whose labours have given you that damp sheet which in a little while will feel so crisp and firm after it has been duly dried, and which will tell you all that is going on over all the world, down to the opera which closed at twelve, and the parliamentary debate which was not over till half-past four. It is good occasionally to rise at five on a December morning, that you may feel how much you are indebted to some who do so for your sake all winter through. No doubt they get accustomed to it; but so you may by doing it always. A great many people living easy lives have no idea of the discomforts of rising by candlelight. Probably they hardly ever did it; when they did, they had a blazing fire and abundant light to dress by, and even with these advantages, which essentially change the nature of the enterprise, they have not done it for very long.—The Country Parson.

THE BLESSINGS OF THE BIBLE.—What an illustrious book is the Bible! It rises like a stream in the desert land—its source in the skies, and its fountain in the valley of the earth. It has rolled on, century after century, enriching every land with verdure and beauty, reflecting all the glowing sky above it, diffusing "whatever things are pure, whatsoever things are of good report," around it. It shines into the casement of the widow, like the light of the morning sun, and makes her heart sing with joy, and enables her orphan to lift her eyes to the wide shore of the eternal sea, and to say, "Immensity is my home, eternity is my lifetime; the mighty God that built the universe is my Father, my Portion, my Friend." It plants in man's heart the hope of joy, the halo of glory and of immortality. It erects in man's conscience the rule of right and wrong. It is emphatically the standard of Christianity. Wherever that standard is unrolled, there freedom finds its noblest footing.

"PA, DON'T YOU KNOW GOD?"—These were the touching words of little Henry, as he sat upon the knee of his loving father, on one beautiful Sabbath morning. That father's love for his little boy was warm and devoted, for he was not only a child of much promise, but he was the only object of his paternal affection. But, sad to relate, that talented and loving father was an infidel. For years he had believed and taught that the Bible, God, and religion were but foolish fantasies for foolish minds. He married, however, a lovely lady, who not only believed in a God, but loved and worshipped Him. She had often consecrated little Henry to the Saviour whom she loved, and had taught him to lift his little heart to Him in prayer. Mr. B., the husband and father, although an infidel, was kind and indulgent; and was so fond of the society of his darling boy, that he often took charge of him himself, while the wife and mother was absent at the house of God—the place (much as she loved her own home) dearer to her heart than any other on earth. It was during her absence on such an occasion—when her prayers might even then have been ascending for the loved ones at home—that little Henry, looking up earnestly and lovingly into his father's face, inquired, "Pa, don't you know God?" The father, startled by the strange inquiry, gazed upon the little cherub before him, almost without the power of utterance. But little Henry, wondering that his dear papa had never spoken to him of the beautiful truths which his mother had taught him, could not be satisfied without a reply. He continued, "Dear pa, don't you know God? Ma knows God." The unbelieving father could utter no words of reply, but, pressing his darling to his heart, tears of penitence and conviction were his only responses. Nor need we add, that he found no peace to his trouble mind until he knew God as a loving Father, through the atoning blood of a crucified Saviour. Nor can we wonder that he still blesses that God for having given him the little questioner who so truly verified the Scripture—"Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise." When this story was related, a few years since, by the father himself, he was then labouring in the western part of the State of ———, as a successful agent of one of the great benevolent societies of the day. He had resolved to consecrate to that God whom he had so mysteriously found, the talents which He had given him.

TO THE EDITOR of the SYDNEY MORNING HERALD.—SIR,—I have this moment had a copy of the EMPIRE of to-day placed in my hands, in which an article appears in reference to the persecution suffered by Mrs. Bentley. I will not reply to it now, further than to state, that I am not aware that the police have made any statements whatever which reflect upon us, although I am aware that "some secret and confidential communication" has been made by Captain M'Lerie to a kind friend of mine (who has all along endeavoured to have as much light thrown on the matter as possible), and against which secrecy I have protested, but my friend has felt himself bound to maintain it, and through the columns of the EMPIRE, I hear, for the first time, that the police have "a theory of their own;" clearly insinuating that this "theory" is, that Mrs. Bentley and myself are the authors of the calumnies circulated against her, and the inventors of the incidents stated, in my published letter to have occurred. This is neither the time nor the occasion to combat so monstrous and cruel a suggestion. If the police have given expression to any such "theory," it is indeed surprising, as the last time I saw Inspector Harrison, he stated, in reference to rumours out of doors "I will stake my soul that neither Mrs. Bentley or yourself have had anything whatever to do with it." And I feel sure he never can have stated, that "on the 19th of April Mrs. Bentley requested that this escort might be discontinued, as Mrs. Bentley would not give her lessons during the following week." Mr. Harrison was informed by me on the 19th of April that on the following Tuesday Mrs. Bentley was not going to her professional duties, it being Easter week; but the assault took place on the following Friday, and Mr. Harrison himself informed us, that he was in so much doubt as to whether he ought to send some one on that day, that he looked at his watch, intending to go himself, but found he was too late. One of the proprietors and editors of the EMPIRE newspaper has all along, by his statements and conduct, given me the strongest assurance of his belief in the truth of all I have stated, you may therefore imagine my surprise and indignation, on reading the comments made in that journal; the more especially when I add that the gentleman referred to was aware—for he heard it from me—that I am engaged with my solicitor drawing up depositions, on oath, that I have been, and still am, urging on the Government assistance and enquiry; and in the face of this, instead of waiting a few days, when all the facts and circumstances will be stated on oath, he practically lends himself to the villains who have so untiringly persecuted us.

Sir, every enquiry shall be made, and must be made. I have been, and am, doing everything in my power, with that view, and I feel deeply the cruelty of this, to say the least of it, premature insinuation that my wife and myself are persons capable of acting in concert to carry out so base and detestable a conspiracy, as would be the case if the insinuation were true.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

THOMAS C. BENTLEY.

IMPORTANT EXTENSIVE SALE
Of Valuable Building Allotments,
CITY OF NEWCASTLE;
And Six Blocks of Land,
TOWN OF CARRINGTON,
PORT STEPHENS.
Known as the property of Mr. Thomas M'Cormack.

ABSOLUTE SALE.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at Rouse's Hotel, Newcastle, on THURSDAY, 7th August, at 11 o'clock,
The following choice and valuable sites in the
CITY OF NEWCASTLE—
8 ALLOTMENTS, on the east side of Darby-street, each having 33 feet frontage by 155 feet depth.
3 ALLOTMENTS, having each 33 feet frontage to Blane-street by 155 feet depth.
4 ALLOTMENTS, having each 33 feet frontage on the north side of Church-street by 165 feet depth.
3 ALLOTMENTS, having each 33 feet frontage on the south side of Church-street by 90 feet depth.
3 ALLOTMENTS, having each 33 feet frontage to the north side of Sydney-street by 90 feet depth.
5 ALLOTMENTS, in M'Cormack-street, leading from Church-street to Sydney-street, each having 30 feet frontage by 99 feet depth.
2 ALLOTMENTS, each having 33 feet frontage to Newcomen-street, at the corner on the Recreation Reserve.
2 ALLOTMENTS, each having 33 feet frontage to Barker-street, at the corner, on the Recreation reserve.
2 ALLOTMENTS, each having 33 feet frontage to Woolfe-street, at the corner on the Recreation Reserve.
7 ALLOTMENTS, each having 32 feet frontage to Ordnance-street, which fronts the Recreation Reserve of 36 acres.
N.B.—These blocks of land, though subdivided as above according to plan, will be offered and sold in lots of any size, to suit purchasers.
☞ The allotments occupy some of the best positions in Newcastle, many of them having frontages to the leading thoroughfares, and in the best business streets in the city, close to the principal public buildings, and therefore admirably adapted for business purposes; while others of them are in elevated and healthy positions, particularly suitable as sites for first-class residences, for which the growing necessities of the city create a great demand.
Newcastle is advantageously situated for great commercial enterprise. Its extensive and beautiful harbour, the inexhaustible extent and richness of its mineral resources, and being the outlet for a large area of agricultural land of unsurpassed fertility, all point out its present and prospective value. A continuation and an extension of its immense shipping trade may be fairly calculated on, as it is the great terminus and shipping port for the several lines of rail which must ultimately traverse the districts to the north and west, including the great trunk line to Armidale, now completed to Singleton. It must be borne in mind that the Government have but little land in Newcastle, and any possessed by the A. A. Company is far from the centre of business.
Labourers, mechanics, miners, and capitalists are earnestly invited to avail themselves of the advantages now offered, and inspect the above sites, which will positively be disposed of on the above date.
TOWN OF CARRINGTON,
PORT STEPHENS.
LOTS 1, 2, 9, and 10 of section D as per plan, fronting Blane and Parry streets, and the reserve for public recreation.
LOTS 3 and 6 of section D, fronting Blane and King streets, and also the public recreation reserve.
☞ Plans on views at the Rooms, Sydney, where further particulars may be obtained.

THE PICK OF NEWTOWN.
IMPORTANT AND EXTENSIVE SALE of the most valuable sites in
NEWTOWN,
fronting the NEWTOWN-ROAD and WILSON-STREET, opposite WEBSTER'S INN and STORES, Mr. HUGHES' PROVENDER STORE, and also adjoining the NEW WESLEYAN CHURCH, being portions of the well-known estate of R. M. ROBEY, Esq., at present occupied by Messrs. HUGHES and DAVIES, Dr. SEDGWICK, and others.

POSITIVE and PEREMPTORY SALE.

TERMS, LIBERAL.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from R. M. ROBEY, Esq., to sell by public auction, at their Rooms, Pitt-street, on MONDAY, 21st July, at 11 o'clock,
The following choice building sites, in the most valuable positions in
NEWTOWN.
LOT 1.—A corner allotment, immediately opposite Mr. Webster's, having 94 feet frontage to the Newtown-road, and about the same frontage to Wilson-street.
LOTS 2 to 6.—Each having from 30 to 40 feet frontage to the Newtown-road and Wilson-street, with depths of from 84 to 115 feet.
LOT 7.—A corner allotment, having the following frontages:—30 feet to the Newtown-road, 132 feet to the Erskineville-road, and about 30 feet to Wilson-street.
 These lots form the paddock now occupied by Mr. Hughes.
LOTS 15, 17, 19, 21, and 23, each having a frontage of about 31 feet to the Newtown Road, with depths of from 62 to 76 feet, extending to a lane at the rear 12 feet wide.
 These lots adjoin the Wesleyan Church. They are fenced, and now occupied by Mr. Davies, butcher, and Mr. Hillgate.
LOTS 18 and 20, each having 30 feet frontage to Wilson-street, adjoining Mr. Dunlop's property.
LOTS 24 and 26, each having a frontage of 30 feet to Wilson-street, with a depth of about 100 feet. This block of land is enclosed, and occupied as a paddock and garden by Dr. Sedgwick.
☞ The above are in the very HEART OF NEWTOWN, and about the
ONLY UNOCCUPIED SITES in the neighbourhood. They principally front the main road in the very centre of the BEST BUSINESS POSITION in the suburb, and are therefore extremely valuable as sites for either dwellings or for mercantile purposes.
Newtown is the most populous, and certainly the MOST IMPORTANT SUBURB
of the city, indeed it may be designated
PART OF SYDNEY,
being simply divided from it by the University Paddocks. For private residences it is infinitely
SUPERIOR IN ADVANTAGES to other numerous suburbs of the city, as it has constant access to the main thoroughfares of the capital by a fine level road, or by railway, every TEN MINUTES IN THE DAY,
besides being acknowledged to be even superior in respect to salubrity to those localities not so favourably situated in respect of
PROXIMITY OR APPROACH.
The terminus to the proposed
BOTANY RAILWAY
has been fixed at the Erskineville Bridge, within a few yards of these allotments, which materially enhances their value as business sites.
This property is brought into the market for BONA FIDE SALE,
not to ascertain its value; the proprietor's
INSTRUCTIONS ARE TO SELL, and satisfy the demand, whatever risk may be incurred as to sacrifice. The auctioneers would, therefore, specially direct the attention of the inhabitants of Newtown and the city to this opportunity of purchasing advantageously, as every lot offered
WILL BE SOLD.
Plan of subdivision may be inspected, and further particulars obtained at the Rooms.

FUNERAL.—Parramatta.—The Friends of Mr. WILLIAM WALKER are respectfully invited to attend the Funeral of his deceased wife AGNES; to move from his residence, Church-street, on SUNDAY AFTERNOON, at 3 o'clock. JAMES WILLIS, undertaker.

PROPOSED INCORPORATION OF PARRAMATTA.—(Certain inhabitants.)—Ordered by the Legislative Assembly to be printed, 26th November, 1861.
To the Honorable the Speaker and Members of the Legislative Assembly, in Parliament assembled.
The humble petition of the inhabitants and householders of the town of Parramatta,
Most humbly and respectfully showeth,
That your petitioners have viewed with surprise, through the papers, that the Honorable the Colonial Secretary had stated, in answer to a question from John Lackey, our respected member, that he had advised the Executive Council to incorporate the town of Parramatta, as soon as the report had been received from the Surveyor-General.
That your petitioners would not have noticed the matter, had it not been stated by the honorable Colonial Secretary, in an interview he had with Mr Richard Webb and his son, that petitions on both sides would not be taken any further notice of, and that they would have no begin again.
That your petitioners, through Mr. Webb, pointed out to the honorable Colonial Secretary thirty-nine (39) names in the petition, dated 27th May last, who are not qualified to sign the said petition under the Municipal Act of one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight (1858); and again, in the supplementary petition, dated 26th August last, thirty-seven (37) names more appeared under similar circumstances, besides ten (10) names which appeared without the authority or knowledge of the parties.
That your petitioners humbly pray that your honourable House will take the above premises into your serious consideration, and grant your petitioners the power of supplementing, as the majority of householders are against the town being incorporated.
And your petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray.
[Here follow 126 signatures.]

TO BREEDERS OF HEAVY STOCK.—The splendid Cart Stallion, HONEST TOM, late the property of Mr. T. Hides, of Southkine, Lincolnshire, England, is expected to arrive per ship Stornoway the beginning of September next, and will TRAVEL the ensuing season, the circuit of Richmond and Windsor. "Honest Tom" is four years old, has proved himself a sure stock-getter, is a beautiful dark bay, stands nearly 17 hands high, and wide in proportion, on remarkably short legs, possessing immense power and substance, whilst for symmetry and activity he stands unrivalled; he is undoubtedly descended (as his pedigree testifies) from the best and most pure breed of cart horses, so that his stock is certain to be first-class, and judges are of opinion that he is in every respect likely to make an animal as noble as his renowned sire.
"Honest Tom" is got by that noted horse, "England's Glory," the property of Mr. B. Taylor, of Peterboro, which took the first prize six years in succession at the Peterboro Agricultural Show, and in 1859 took the Royal Society's first prize at Huntingdon; the North Lincolnshire Society's first prize, at Warwick; the Huntingdonshire Society's first prize, at Great Grimsby; the Yorkshire Society's first prize, at Hull; and a prize at the Lancashire Show at Liverpool,—each of which were open to all England. For several years he has stood open to show against any other horse in England, for one hundred guineas.
"Honest Tom's" sire was got by Mr. Brown's "England's Glory," which took the Royal Society's first prize, at Windsor, in 1851; also, the Manchester and Liverpool prize, the same year.
"Honest Tom's" dam, an excellent mare, by that famed horse "Matchless" the property of Mr. Dack, which horse is the sire of thirty stallions now travelling; thus showing that "Honest Tom" is one of the best descended cart colts England can produce.
